Abstract

Local wisdom in South Sulawesi is not only inherited by ancestors but also by clerics who spread Islam, so that Islamic values, including the value of moderation, cannot be separated from community culture. This research focuses on the traces of the value of religious moderation in the culture of the people of Tosora, South Sulawesi, which Syekh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini inherited. This research is descriptive qualitative research. The researchers used three data collection techniques, Observations, Interviews, and Documentation. The results of this research found that; 1) The cultural portrait of the Tosora Bugis community reflects the efforts of the local community to preserve their rich ancestral cultural heritage with wisdom 2) Sheikh Jamaluddin has a model of cultural and moderate da’wah. 3) The Tusora people have internalized religious moderation in their society, specifically in the culture of Pangngadereng, Lempu, Getteng, Ada Tongeng, Sipakatau, Sipakalebbi, and Sipakainge', namely in the culture of Pangngadereng, Lempu', Getteng, Ada Tongeng, Sipakatau, Sipakalebbi, and Sipakainge'. This research presents a significant new aspect in understanding the culture of the Bugis Tosora community which reflects efforts to preserve ancestral cultural heritage and creates the potential to pass on this tradition to the next generation, in addition to teaching the importance of an open and inclusive approach in spreading religious values. The values of religious moderation internalized in the culture of the Tosora people prove that religious moderation is not only a theoretical concept, but also a reality that lives in their daily lives.

A. Introduction

The research of society and its culture is always interesting to do. Culture shows the progress and development of the civilization of a society. Local wisdom and ancestral traditions are an identity that must be preserved and become a legacy for the development of the nation's life. Local wisdom is a value that must be maintained and translated into various aspects of national and state life, and it is a priceless legacy for the nation's next generation.

Examining society and its culture and exploring its meaning will lead us to maturity in thinking and acting, including maintaining the survival of a safe, peaceful, and prosperous group of people. Therefore, conducting studies on society and its culture is a necessity on an ongoing basis to maintain our local wisdom heritage, including exploring the values of religious moderation that have grown long ago in the lives of Indonesian people.

One area that has a lot of cultural history and local wisdom in South Sulawesi is Tosora. Tosora has historical sites, namely the Tosora Old Mosque and the tombs of kings and figures. It is interesting to study because the cultural development of the Tosora people cannot be separated from a great figure named Syekh Sayyid Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini, the great-grandson of the Wali Songo. Tracing the traces of teaching methods and instilling moderate Islamic values by Sheikh Sayyid Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini for the Tosora people and their influence on the cultural development of the local community is something that needs to be studied and explored.

Religious moderation emphasizes the importance of peace and harmony between religions, but in reality, in some areas, inter-religious conflict is still a disturbing problem. Apart from that, narrow primordial identity sentiments, such as religious, ethnic and racial fanaticism, can threaten the integrity of the national building that has been agreed upon by this nation. Currently, the emergence of religious behavior that is too extreme and emphasizes religious fundamentalism which has the potential to lead to religious radicalism is a serious problem facing this nation. Ironically, it is not uncommon for the content of religious narratives and videos in circulation to contain hate speech, fake news (hoaxes), and identity sentiments such as religious, ethnic and racial fanaticism, which can threaten the integrity of the national building that has been agreed upon by this nation. This certainly goes against the wisdom and cultural values of our ancestors and also goes against Islamic teachings. This creates questions about the extent to which the values of religious moderation held by predecessors have been internalized in society's culture and the extent to which its practices reflect these values. Observing the value of religious moderation within a conceptual framework, we must understand that its implementation in the culture of Tosora society may be more complex than it appears at the theoretical level. The value of religious moderation is not just a theoretical concept, but often reflects deeper realities that develop in local culture. The researchers consider it important to explore further how the value of religious moderation is interpreted and implemented in the cultural context of the

Kartini et al.

Tosora community. This includes understanding how these values are manifested in daily practices, traditional ceremonies, social policies, and the way communities interact with each other.

Religious moderation is a weapon and bulwark in facing religious fundamentalism which has the potential to lead to religious radicalism which is a serious problem facing the Indonesian nation today. In the Ministry of Religion's book Religious Moderation, it is explained that religious moderation is a tawassuth way of religion, namely carrying out and practicing religion without going to extremes. Tawazun means being balanced in behavior, Tasamuh means being tolerant of differences, fairness means being fair in making decisions. There are three limits to someone being said to have violated the values of religious moderation, namely violating the values of respect for humanity, commitment to mutual agreements, and awareness in maintaining public order.

Therefore, the authors must research the Value of Religious Moderation in the Method of Spreading Islam Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini and its influence on Tosora Community Culture, Wajo Regency. The authors focus this research on three primary studies; the first is how the history of Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini's journey in spreading Islam in Tosora, South Sulawesi? The second is how the method of spreading Islam, Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini in Tosora, South Sulawesi? and the third, how are the values of moderation by Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini in the culture of the Tosora sub-district community Majaleng Regency, Wajo, South Sulawesi?

This research, apart from being an effort to trace the footsteps of the ulema in South Sulawesi, and their contribution to teaching Islamic education in a pluralistic society, is also an effort to explore the cultural values of the local community, which are noble traditions, and identity that must be maintained and preserved, including the values of religious moderation that exist in the life and culture of society. That is all that is important to preserve culture and strengthen national commitment.

This research presents a significant new aspect in understanding the culture of the Bugis Tosora community which reflects efforts to preserve ancestral cultural heritage and creates the potential to pass on this tradition to the next generation, in addition to teaching the importance of an open and inclusive approach in spreading religious values. The values of religious moderation internalized in the culture of the Tosora people prove that religious moderation is not only a theoretical concept, but also a reality that lives in their daily lives.

B. Research Method

This qualitative research seeks to describe and explore the teachings and religious moderation values of Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini that exist in the culture of the Tosora people. Qualitative research requires the ability of researchers to describe research data obtained in the field. Besides, the researchers expected to be able to capture phenomena in society and examine their meanings and values in them. The researchers emphasize this research on descriptive qualitative, which seeks to examine the community's behavior, habits, and culture and explores in depth the values behind it, which are then presented in a descriptive form and a complete and clear explanation.

This research was conducted in Tosora, South Sulawesi. Tosora is a village that used to be a city of the Kingdom of Wajo before the capital of Wajo moved to the city of Sengkang until now. Tosora is an area that contains the tombs of the kings of Wajo and their figures, including Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini. The target of this research is the people of Tosora. The researchers also searched for data as needed and analyze it collectively. The researchers obtained data from various sources for the validity and depth of the information obtained.

The researchers used three data collection techniques: Observations to identify the culture, behavior, and habits of the Tosora people. The second is that interviews to obtain and collect data from informants based on interview guidelines. The researchers interviewed several informants, as described above. Furthermore, thirdly, documentation is used to obtain data on the historical traces and heritage sites of Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini. The following collection methods are:

1. Observation
2. Interview
3. Documentation

Data Collection Methods

In analyzing the data, The researchers used the Mills and Habermann data analysis model to analyze the data. The researchers carried out three stages in data analysis: reducing research data and, presenting research data, then concluding.\(^8\)

The first stage is data reduction, namely selection. Data were obtained from interviews, direct field observations, and document analysis. Of course, it has a complex shape. Then all the data obtained are grouped into important, less important, and unimportant. Then the data in the insignificant data set is discarded or unused, so the remaining data becomes important and less important. Then the researchers discard the less important data, leaving only the important data. Then this data becomes more straightforward according to research needs and can represent all the data obtained. So it is easy to process it to the next stage to become rounded, clear information, and answer a problem.

The second stage is the presentation of data. The researchers present data presentation as a stage in the analysis of this research data to present or display data in an orderly, systematic, and structured manner with specific and organized relationship patterns, and so on. This data is not in the form of raw data but provides information.

The next stage is concluding. These conclusions are presented in the research report and placed in the concluding section. Especially in the conclusion section, so that readers of the research report can also find these conclusions. The process of concluding is carried out by the researchers when all data is simplified, collected, or presented so that later it can be easily understood.

To test the validity of the data, the researchers used triangulation to obtain accurate and correct data by combining different data collection methods and data sources. To explore the validity of the data, the researchers used various data sources such as documentation, interviews, and observations.

In addition, the researchers interviewed informants who have different views. Of course, each method will produce other evidence or statements that will provide different views on the curriculum based on the moderation of religion studied. These different views will produce a breadth of knowledge to obtain valid data regarding the value of religious moderation, Sheikh Jamluddin Akbar al-Husaini, on the culture of the Tosora people, Majauleng District, Wajo Regency, South Sulawesi.

C. Results and Discussion

1. The Culture of Tosora People

In describing the culture of the Tosora people, the researchers made observations at the research location, namely in Tosora Village, Majauleng District, Wajo Regency, using participatory observation techniques in several community activities to obtain more accurate research results in the field.

The culture of the Tosora Bugis community manifests the overall results of the thoughts, initiatives, and feelings of the Tosora Bugis people. The community culture is in various cultural elements, such as language, knowledge, society, technology, economic and livelihood systems, religious systems, and arts unique to the community. The cultural portrait of the Tosora Bugis community reflects the local community's efforts to preserve their ancestral cultural heritage such as the culture of mattennung lipa sabbe, mabbule bola, manre sipulung, ma'meraje, ma'maulu', mabbarasanji sabang, and mappadendang with their distinctive style.

Regarding language and knowledge systems, the language used by the Tosora people is Bugis, with its style typical of the Wajo people, who have their accents and, of course, have differences from other areas that use the Bugis language. The Bugis language for the Tosora people is the mother tongue instilled from an early age and used in the midst of the family and community environment. The Bugis language also describes the knowledge and education system in Tosora during the community.

There are several community members, especially among the elderly, around 60 to 80, who understand the Bugis language and are fluent in writing and communicating using the Lontara Bugis script. The ability to master the Lontara Bugis script illustrates that the Tosora people have used the language for a long time in communicating and understanding various other disciplines. In later developments, the general public, the younger generation, used the Indonesian language in official activities and encouraged the mastery of foreign languages in schools and educational institutions. Besides that, they still preserved and maintained the Bugis language as a legacy from their ancestors.\textsuperscript{10}

Next is the social system, in social life in the midst of a cultural community that is currently still being maintained, namely the \textit{mabule bola} and \textit{manre sipulung} culture. \textit{Mabule bola} is the activity of lifting a wooden house which is semi-permanent in nature and is the hallmark of the house of the Bugis people. The \textit{Mabule Bola} activity illustrates the unity and integrity of the Tosora people in their daily lives. While \textit{manre sipulung} is a routine activity in the form of eating together in a place carried out by the people of Tosora after harvesting agricultural products as an expression of gratitude to the Creator, the activity is filled with various series of events such as \textit{mappadendang}, which is the activity of beating drums as entertainment at the event.\textsuperscript{11}

\textit{Mappadendang} also reflects how the art system is in Tosora people that the people of Tosora see art as an inspiration that can strengthen ties of friendship. Besides that, the existence of Bugis songs that mention the word Tosora, as in the song \textit{Bulu Alauna Tempe}, illustrates that art has its place in the culture of the Tosora people.

The economic system and livelihoods of the Tosora people also represent their culture to this day. This can be found in \textit{Mattennung Lipa Sabbe}, namely the work of weaving typical Wajo silk sarongs by women. This activity is to earn income and as a form of wisdom, which is full of moral messages and illustrates the high work ethic of Tosora women.

\textit{Lipa Sabbe} is a garment that has been worn by the Bugis people, especially the Tosora people, for a long time, in tracing history since the founding of the Wajo kingdom in 1399 with the first king Latenri Bali and based in Tosora.\textsuperscript{12} Most of the Wajo people have used \textit{Lipa Sabbe}, both by \textit{Arung Matoa} (the king), \textit{arung} (nobility), and familiar people until \textit{atanna datu’e} (king's servants), and it is believed that these clothes were worn in the past before the arrival of Islam in tana Wajo and were preserved in the period after. After Wajo officially embraced Islam in 1610 during the

Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini

Although the arrival of Islam in South Sulawesi has always been associated with a trio of datuks, namely Datuk Ri Bandang, Datuk Ri Tiro, and Datuk Patimang from Minangkabau, who in historical records serve as the beginning of the acceptance of Islam in the kingdoms of South Sulawesi around the 16th century. However, Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini had previously introduced Islam, especially in Wajo.
even though his teaching was only individual. The Wajo people know him better as Sheikh Tosora, which means our Sheikh in Tosora.

This fact then becomes interesting because it is not just a difference of opinion regarding the history of Islamization in the archipelago or Sulawesi in particular. Nevertheless, how the roots of religious polarization come to religious reasoning can be traced from the process of Islamization. For example, there are differences in the da'wah model developed by Jamaluddin al-Husaini with Datuk ri Bandang, Datuk ri Tiro, and Datuk ri Pattimang, where Sheikh Jamaluddin preferred to spread Islam culturally due to the circumstances and situation at that time.

Rijal Mumazziq, in his research, entitled "Traces of Uzbek Ulama in Indonesia", tries to trace the traces of Uzbek Ulama and their role in the development of Islam in the archipelago. The researchers mentioned one of the Ulama who played a significant role in the spread of Islam in the archipelago, namely Shaykh Sayyid Jamluddin Akbar al-Husaini. From the trail of his da'wah journey it shows that he was an active preacher, a moderate scholar so that he was well received when traveling simultaneously in various corners of the archipelago to a place called Tosora.

Referring to the historical records mentioned in the previous discussion, the arrival of Sayyid Jamluddin Akbar al-Husaini in 1320 indicated that Islam in Wajo existed before the founding of the Wajo Kingdom because the inauguration of the first Arung Matowa Wajo, namely Latenri Bali, was held in 1399. The inauguration of Latenri Bali as Arung Matowa marked the establishment of the Wajo Kingdom. This fact explains that Sheikh Jamluddin Akbar al-Husaini is believed to have spread Islam directly in the midst of a cultural society before the official establishment of the Wajo kingdom.

Islam had not been officially embraced by the Wajo Kingdom at his arrival. That may be why the activities carried out by him are still clandestine. Thus, it is believed that there were already adherents of Islam in the Wajo Kingdom at that time. It is just that this condition is limited to his family, including people who live next door to him. One of his challenges in spreading Islam is the traditional beliefs of the Wajo people, who are fanatical and strong.

14Rijal Mumazziq Z.
15Interview with Mr. Alang (Keeper of the Tosora kings' tomb complex)
Therefore the principles and teachings of moderate Islam, not forcing understanding, and the ability to integrate Islam and culture have become his strategy for spreading Islam in society. This strategy is also known to be the strategy of his descendants when spreading Islam in the archipelago, especially on the islands. Java is known as the Nine Wali "Wali Songo." In spreading Islam, Sheikh Jamaluddin did not explicitly mention Islam as a belief but tried to instill Islamic values starting from the activities and daily life of the community.\textsuperscript{18}

According to various sources in the field, one of the stories supporting this claim is that when he arrived in Tosora Wajo, Sayyid Jamaluddin and his followers did not directly teach Islam to Tosora residents. Instead, he held martial arts in private with his followers. The local people also wanted to know what kind of meeting was being held that afternoon. Eventually, word got out that what the guests were doing was a \textit{Langka} game which in Bugis language means a game of movement that can be used as self-defense if an enemy attacks you. Because those who play this \textit{langka} game are Arabs (of Arabic descent), the local people call it \textit{Langka na Ara}. The community then asked to become members to participate in this game. Because the practice games continued until evening, after maghrib, Sayyid Jamaluddin and his entourage prayed. The local people who participated in the practice also came down to pray, even though it was just for practice. Even though, in the end, many training participants uttered the Syahadatayn. Later, the training ground called Langka Ara' became Langkara. This word then became Langgar, then changed to Mushallah and mosque.\textsuperscript{19}

From this story, Sheikh Jamaluddin has a cultural and moderate preaching model. He spread Islam in a way that is non-violent and tolerant and does not force understanding. His respect for humanity shows his moderate behavior in spreading Islam. Besides that, this attitude is also part of religious moderation, namely non-violence and tolerance.

Besides, before the formation of the Wajo kingdom and long before Islam became the official religion of the kingdom, in this area there was known a person named Puang ri Lampulungeng who taught the civil society system and taught the term Dewata Sewwa'e (One God) to the people of Tosora and its surroundings, so that the term God one was known by the people of Tosora long before the official arrival of Islam. Likewise, the mabbaca dua tradition that is still being preserved by the people of Tosora is a form of his attempt to compromise between Islamic teachings and the customs and habits of the Tosora people who always depend on themselves and ask for sustenance from the spirits so they only ask the Dewata Sewwa'e (God is One). The figure is believed to be Sheikh Jamaluddin Akbar al-Husaini.

His efforts and endeavors in integrating Islam and culture prove that he has instilled an attitude of religious moderation in society in the form of an accommodative attitude to local values and wisdom. The strategy and method of spreading da'wah emphasized that religion did not come to eliminate the traditions and culture of society. However, religion-inspired and benefited society, caring for traditions and creating a civil society. His respect for the traditions and customs of the local community shows his moderation in religion.

3. Core Values of Religious Moderation in the culture of the Tosora people

Realizing religious moderation in people's lives is an effort to maintain and preserve the ancestors' heritage rich in wisdom and philosophy of life. The limits of religious moderation can be seen from attitudes that uphold human values, respect collective agreements, and maintain public order in the life of the nation and state. In the national context, religious moderation can be seen in four indicators: national commitment, tolerance, anti-violence, and accommodation of local wisdom. These values are the basis for researchers in analyzing and formulating the value of religious moderation in Tosora society.

a. Panggadereng, Lempu, Getteng and Ada Tongeng as the embodiment of the value of national commitment

One of the limitations of religious moderation is sticking to mutually agreed-upon agreements and norms. Besides that, an accommodative attitude to the locality aspect is also an indicator of religious moderation.

In Bugis society, including the Tosora people, the term Panggadereng is known, which means holding fast to the agreements and norms that apply and was born from attoriolong (wisdom of the past). Panggadereng is a set of values created by the Bugis community to regulate societal behavior.20

Lempu is honesty, in Buginese language lempu means straight. In the context of the life of the Bugis community, this word is sometimes used to mean honest, true, good and fair attitudes. Someone who has the characteristic of being able to be called malempu means not committing fraud, cheating, and betrayal. The advice of a Luwu scholar named Tociung conveyed “eppa'i gau'na lempu'e; risalai naddampeng, riparennuangi temmaceko bettuanna risanrresi tepabelleang, temmangoangenngi tannia olona, tensasengngi deceng rekko nasamarini pudecengngi”

The meaning is: There are four actions of a strongman, forgiving those who have wronged him, being trusted and then not cheating, meaning that if the responsibility rests on him, he will not betray, he will not be greedy for something that is not his right, he will not look at goodness only for himself.

In addition, the Getteng attitude is also found which is the value of firmness and firmness possessed by the Tosora people to hold fast to values that are considered correct and to agreements that have been mutually agreed upon. For the people of Tososra, maintaining the principle is a bet on self-esteem or known as siri’. Maintaining principles with getteng values is a form of Tosora people's self-esteem.

Furthermore, the term ada tongeng is also known, which means words that are true, honest, and far from lies. For the people of Tosora, Tongeng is a word that not only has a value of truth and honesty, but is also conditional on the value of firmness and firmness (getteng) in what they believe in.

b. Sipakatau, Sipakalebbi, and Sipakainge as the embodiment of the values of tolerance and non-violence

Upholding humanity is an important aspect within the limits of one's attitude of religious moderation. Humanity is what is very concerned in Islam, even the best human measure is the one that is most beneficial to fellow human beings.\(^{21}\) The attitude of upholding human values and opposing all forms of violence is an indicator of religious moderation.

In Bugis society, the philosophy of sipakatau and sipakalebbi is known, which means humanizing and respecting each other. This attitude has become a guideline for people's lives which was passed down by their ancestors and maintained and internalized in the midst of people's daily life and activities.\(^ {22}\)

Upholding human values as well as humanizing and respecting each other internalized in the life of the Tosora people proves that the indicators of religious moderation regarding non-violence and tolerance have been ingrained since ancient times in the Tosora people. Mutual respect for the opinions of others is also reflected in the philosophy of the Bugis siliweng tessidiapi, which means that everyone has their own strengths and weaknesses, therefore mutual respect and appreciation is a necessity.\(^ {23}\)

c. Sipakainge' as an embodiment of maintaining ancestral wisdom

Religious moderation seeks to create a harmonious and peaceful atmosphere, including invitations and proselytizing in religion as well as giving advice and warnings that must be carried out in ways that are peaceful and respect the differences that exist.\(^{24}\)

The concept of sipakainge' for the Bugis community is a real strategy in an effort to remind and advise each other where the nature of the message conveyed contains positive warnings and contains good or advice that brings benefits instead of making things worse in the community.

Advice from the Bugis community, especially Tosora, is expressed in the form of an artistic tradition through pappaseng lontarak.\(^{25}\) (previous works containing messages of wisdom). This advice has a deep and noble meaning, as in Bugis philosophy the expression is known:

>> "Rebba sipatokkong, Mali siparappe. Siru'i menre, tessirui' no. Malilu sipakainge. Mainge'pi naja (Fall remind each other, Drifting into each other, Pull pull up don't pull each other down, Mistakes remind each other, When you realize then stop)."

This research presents a significant new aspect in understanding the culture of the Bugis Tosora community and the role of Sheikh Jamaluddin in maintaining and expressing the values of religious moderation.

First, the cultural portrait of the Tosora Bugis community which reflects efforts to preserve their ancestral cultural heritage shows a deep awareness of the cultural wisdom contained therein. This illustrates how local people diligently strive to maintain their cultural roots, creating the potential to pass on these traditions to the next generation.

Second, the moderate character of Sheikh Jamaluddin's da'wah model highlights the importance of an open and inclusive approach in spreading religious values. This encourages the understanding that the value of religious moderation can be a bridge between religion and local culture, enabling people to live their religion in a way that is in harmony with their own culture.

Finally, the values of religious moderation internalized in the culture of the Tosora people prove that religious moderation is not only a theoretical concept, but also a reality that lives in their daily lives. This research reveals the extent to which these values have permeated various aspects of life, such as the Pangngadereng, Lempu'.

Getteng, Ada Tongeng, Sipakatau, Sipakalebbi, and Sipakainge' cultures, creating a rich and diverse cultural landscape that still maintains an nuance of religious moderation. Overall, this research opens the door to a deeper understanding of the way local religious and cultural values influence each other and presents new ideas about how communities can care for their cultural heritage by incorporating religious moderation in their daily lives.

D. Conclusion

The culture of the Tosora Bugis community, which is contained in various cultural elements such as language, knowledge, society, technology, economy, livelihood systems, religious systems, and art, has become their hallmark. This cultural portrait reflects the local community's efforts to preserve their ancestral cultural heritage, such as the culture of of mattennung lipa sabbe, mabbule bola, manre sipulung, ma'neraje, ma'maulu', mabbarasanji sabang, and mappadendang with characteristics that are rich in local values and wisdom in it.

Sheikh Jamaluddin has a model of da'wah that is cultural and moderate. The various values of Moderation in his da'wah are instilling an attitude of tolerance, non-violence, and accommodating local wisdom. His appreciation for humanity in conveying his da'wah and his efforts to integrate Islam and culture proves that he has instilled an attitude of religious moderation in the Tosora community.

In the culture of the Tosora people, religious moderation is a value that has been internalized in the midst of society. The values of religious moderation in the form of national commitment, tolerance, anti-violence, and accommodation for ancestral wisdom have actually been rooted in every aspect of the locality of the Tosora people, which are in harmony and even become an inseparable part of the values of religious moderation itself which are known by other terms. The term is not just a name but has become the philosophy and life principle of the Tosora people in the form of Pangngadereng, Lempu', Getteng, Ada Tongeng, Sipakatau, Sipakalebbi, and Sipakainge'.

Submission of Article

Journal Adabiyah welcomes the articles submission with the main themes on Humanities and Islamic Studies with the emphasis on interdisciplinary and intertextuality approach. Adabiyah is thematically published twice in a year, i.e. the theme of the humanities in June and the Islamic Study in December. Themes related to Islamic Studies are textual studies, scriptural traditions, Islamic law, and theology; and those related to Humanities are language, literature, history, and culture. This scholarly journal guarantees that the editor decision based on the peer review results will not exceed 30 days from the paper submission date. Authors are invited to read our archives; to find the relevant topics for the journal, and to submit complete unpublished scientific researches, which are not under review in any other conferences or academic journals.

Publication Ethic

Publication Ethic and Malpractice Statement

Journal Adabiyah is a peer-reviewed journal, published twice a year by the Faculty of Adab and Humaniora, Alauddin State Islamic University of Makassar Indonesia. It is available online as open access sources as well as in print. This statement clarifies ethical behaviour of all parties involved in the act of publishing an article in this journal, including the author, the editor-in-chief, the Editorial Board, the reviewers, and the publisher. This statement is based on COPE’s Best Practice Guidelines for Journal Editors.

Ethical Guideline for Journal Publication

The publication of an article in Journal Adabiyah, is an essential building block in the development of a coherent and respected network of knowledge. It is a direct reflection of the quality of the work of the authors and the institutions that support them. Peer-reviewed articles support and embody the scientific methods. It is therefore important to agree upon standards of expected ethical behavior for all parties involved in the act of publishing: the author, the editor, the reviewer, the publisher, and the society. As the publisher of Journal Adabiyah, the Faculty of Adab and Humaniora takes its duties of guardianship over all stages of publishing seriously and it recognizes its ethical and other responsibilities. The Faculty of Adab and Humaniora committed to ensuring that advertising, reprint or other commercial revenue has no impact or influence on editorial decisions.

Publication Decisions

The editors of Journal Adabiyah is responsible for deciding which articles submitted to the journal should be published. The validation of the work in question and its importance to researchers and readers must always drive such decisions. The editors may be guided by the policies of the journal's editorial board and constrained by such legal requirements as shall then be in force regarding libel, copyright infringement, and plagiarism. The editors may confer with other editors or reviewers in making their decisions.

Plagiarism Screening

It is basically author’s duty to only submit a manuscript that is free from plagiarism and academically malpractices. The editor, however, will check all submitted papers through Turnitin.

Fair Play

An editor at any time evaluates manuscripts for their intellectual content without regard to race, gender, sexual orientation, religious belief, ethnic origin, citizenship, or political philosophy of the authors.
Confidentiality
The editors and any editorial staff must not disclose any information about a submitted manuscript to anyone other than the corresponding author, reviewers, potential reviewers, other editorial advisers, and the publisher, as appropriate.

Disclosure and Conflicts of Interest
Unpublished materials disclosed in a submitted manuscript must not be used in editors' own research without the express written consent of the author.

DUTIES OF AUTHORS

Reporting Standards
Authors of reports of original research should present an accurate account of the work performed as well as an objective discussion of its significance. Underlying data should be represented accurately in the paper. A paper should contain sufficient detail and references to permit others to replicate the work. Fraudulent or knowingly inaccurate statements constitute unethical behaviour and are unacceptable.

Originality and Plagiarism
The authors should ensure that they have written entirely original works, and if the authors have used the work and/or words of others that this has been appropriately cited or quoted.

Multiple, Redundant, or Concurrent Publication
An author should not in general publish manuscripts describing essentially the same research in more than one journal or primary publication. Submitting the same manuscript to more than one journal concurrently constitutes unethical publishing behaviour and is unacceptable.

Acknowledgement of Sources
Proper acknowledgment of the work of others must always be given. Authors should cite publications that have been influential in determining the nature of the reported work.

Authorship of the Paper
Authorship should be limited to those who have made a significant contribution to the conception, design, execution, or interpretation of the reported research. All those who have made significant contributions should be listed as co-authors. Where there are others who have participated in certain substantive aspects of the research project, they should be acknowledged or listed as contributors. The corresponding author should ensure that all appropriate co-authors and no inappropriate co-authors are included on the paper, and that all co-authors have seen and approved the final version of the paper and have agreed to its submission for publication.

Disclosure and Conflicts of Interest
All authors should disclose in their manuscript any financial or other substantive conflict of interest that might be construed to influence the results or interpretation of their manuscript. All sources of financial support for the project should be disclosed.

Fundamental errors in Published Works
When an author discovers a significant error or inaccuracy in his/her own published work, it is the author’s obligation to promptly notify the journal editor or publisher and cooperate with the editor to retract or correct the paper.

PLAGIARISM
It is basically author’s duty to only submit a manuscript that is free from plagiarism and academically malpractices. The editor, however, will check all submitted papers through Turnitin.
