

Reception of Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī's Jam' al-Jawāmi' and Its Impact on Post-Classical Uṣūl al-Fiqh Literature

Mohamed Jabir Ali al-Hudawi*

Sultan Omar 'Ali Saifuddien Centre for Islamic Studies (SOASCIS), University Brunei Darussalam

Abs

Article history (leave this part): Submission date: 5 September 2024 Received in revised form: 14 October 2024 Acceptance date: 30 October 2024 Available online: 22 November 2024

Keywords:

Shāfi'i jurisprudence; post-classical Islamic legal theory; sharh-matn relationship; commentary literature; Bloom's Taxonomy

Funding:

This research received no specific grant from any funding agency in the public, commercial, or not-forprofit sectors.

Competing interest:

The author(s) have declared that no competing interests exist.

How to Cite (leave this part):

al-Hudawi, Mohamed Jabir Ali. 2024. "Reception of Tāj Al-Dīn Al-Subkī's Jam' Al-Jawāmi' and Its Impact on Post-Classical Uşūl Al-Fiqh Literature". Al-Daulah: Jurnal Hukum Pidana Dan Ketatanegaraan 13 (2). https://doi.org/10.24252/al-daulah.v1312.51130.

© The authors (2024). This is an Open Access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution (CC BY)

Abstract

Research Objective: This study examines the historical trajectory of post-classical usul al-figh literature through Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī's (d. 771/1370) seminal work Jam' al-jawāmi'. The inquiry investigates factors contributing to this text's establishment as an educational cornerstone and its subsequent impact on Islamic legal scholarship across juristic traditions. Research Methodology: The research employs historical analysis of biobibliographical sources, tracing the evolution of commentaries across various juristic schools. This methodological approach facilitates reconstruction of intellectual networks through which Jam' al-jawāmi' proliferated beyond its 8th/14th century Shāfi'ī origins. Results: This succinct treatise rapidly transcended temporal and geographic boundaries to become integral to Islamic legal education worldwide. The text catalyzed a substantial corpus of commentaries from diverse juristic schools, demonstrating exceptional scholarly reception across traditional boundaries. Findings and Implications: The analysis reveals a sophisticated interplay between base text (matn) and commentary literature, challenging reductive assumptions regarding post-classical Islamic scholarship's originality. Textual transmission practices constituted dynamic sites of intellectual engagement rather than mere knowledge preservation. Conclusion: Jam' al-jawāmi' established itself as a pivotal node in uşūl al-fiqh development, with enduring influence manifested through successive generations of scholarly engagement transcending juristic schools. Contribution: This study reconceptualizes Islamic legal knowledge transmission, highlighting commentary literature's critical role in intellectual innovation within seemingly traditional educational frameworks. Limitations and Suggestions: Despite potential constraints in source accessibility, the research illuminates previously underappreciated dimensions of Islamic scholarly traditions. Future scholarship would benefit from deeper investigation into the interpretive legacies of this intellectual tradition within evolving historical contexts.

Introduction

The compilation of treatises by classical Muslim scholars served a fundamental pedagogical purpose: to facilitate students' learning by consolidating key propositions and central concepts—such as sources of Islamic law, methods of interpretations, objectives of sharī'ah, and principles of ijtihad—within a single work, enabling easy study and memorization. This endeavor was often driven by students expressed need for comprehensive materials, and exceptional scholarly work frequently supplanted existing ones in academic curricula, leading to a historical progression of influential texts that shaped the syllabi of various Islamic disciplines. This progression from foundational knowledge texts to extensive compendia promoting higher-order critical thinking align closely with Bloom's Taxonomy, a predominant educational framework that organizes learning objectives into cognitive levels—from basic recall to higher-order critical thinking.

In the domain of $u \bar{s} u \bar{u} a l - fiqh$ (Islamic legal theory), this trend commenced with al-Shāfi'ī's (d. 204/820) $a l - R i s \bar{a} l a h$ and reached its zenith by the 8th/14th century with Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī's (d. 771/1370)¹ Jam' $a l - j a w \bar{a} m i'$. Widely accepted as a textbook for $u \bar{s} u \bar{l} a l - fiqh$, it served as a base text (matn) for subsequent scholarship in the field. Over time, various works gained prominence as authoritative sources for the discipline, only to be superseded by newer contributions as demonstrated in the following discussion. The structure, language, argumentative style, and length of these compendia were continuously refined to meet evolving educational needs.

This trajectory of $u s \bar{u} l \bar{i}$ compendia follows a path aligned with Bloom's Taxonomy: beginning with al-Risālah, a modest-sized treatise with accessible language aimed at foundational understanding, progressing to voluminous works of intricate argumentation for deeper analysis, and eventually culminating in highly condensed matn works like Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c, which promote advanced synthesis and mastery. In the post-classical era (approximately 6th-13th/12th-19th centuries), scholars primarily focused on interpreting authoritative base texts (mutūn) across discipline. This trend gave rise to a genre of multi-layered commentaries, resulting in an extensive body of literature including shurūḥ (commentaries), ḥawāshī (glosses), muktaṣarāt (abridgements) among others.²

The Islamic commentary tradition was long dismissed as merely reiterating established ideas, serving to clarify base texts without offering innovation. Orientalists often cited it as evidence of intellectual stagnation.³ However, recent studies on post-classical scholarship's intellectual history challenge this view, increasingly recognizing the commentary tradition as a

² On the typology of commentary literature see L.W.C. (Eric) Van Lit, 'Commentary and Commentary Tradition', MIDÉO 32 (2017), 3–26.

³ Asad Q. Ahmed, 'Post-Classical Philosophical Commentaries/Glosses: Innovation in the Margins', Oriens 41. 3/4 (January 2013), 317–18, https://doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413405.

^{*} Corresponding author.

E-mail addresses: mkjabi@dhiu.in, mkjabi@gmail.com. (Mohamed Jabir Ali al-Hudawi) dynamic and evolving intellectual endeavor.⁴ Unlike other Islamic disciplines,⁵ studies on matn-sharḥ genre in uṣūl al-fiqh literature remains notably sparse, likely due to the linguistic nuances and stylistic methods. Operating in the transitional period between the classical and post-classical eras and representing the mutakallimūn school, al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ occupies a pivotal position. This text, a seminal original matn work, significantly influenced the subsequent development of uṣūl al-fiqh. Widely studied, memorized, and referenced to, it spurred over a hundred commentaries. Recent scholarly efforts have culminated in the verification and publication of several of these commentaries, providing succinct insights into commentary tradition of the text.⁶ A comprehensive list of these commentaries has been recorded by Aḥmad Ibrāhīm Ḥasanāt,⁷ and Ṣāliḥ al-Zankī,⁸ without further exploring their impact. This study builds on their findings, offering a comprehensive analysis of Jamʿ al-al-jawāmiʿ's reception as a textbook, its various commentaries, and its enduring impact on the subsequent development of uṣūl al-fiqh scholarship.

¹ Al-Subkī, born in 727/1327 in Cairo, belonged to an esteemed scholarly lineage. His father, Taqī al-Dīn al-Subkī, imparted comprehensive early education to him and facilitated his advanced studies under the tutelage of renowned scholars. In 739/1338, he relocated to Damascus with his father, who assumed the office of qādī al-qudāt (chief judge). Eventually he succeeded his father in the prestigious role in 756/1355. Among his notable professors were al-Mizzī (d. 742/1341), Ibn al-Naqīb (d. 745/1344), Abū Hayyān (d. 745/1344), and al-Dhahabī (d. 747/1346). Al-Subkī's intellectual pursuits spanned various disciplines, including Islamic law, jurisprudence, Arabic grammar, biography, and theology. For a more comprehensive exploration of his life and contributions, see Mohamed Jabir Ali Hudawi, 'al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi': a conceptual critical analysis of its significance, methodology and terminology (Master's Diss., International Islamic University Malaysia, 2013), 25–50.

Method

This qualitative study employs a descriptive textual analysis to explore the historical significance and impact of Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī's Jam' al-Jawāmi' within uṣūl al-fiqh literature. Textual analysis, a core method in the study of Islamic intellectual history, involves examining primary and secondary sources to uncover the reception, and influence of this seminal work. The research primarily focuses on an in-depth examination of Jam' al-Jawāmi' itself, along with key commentaries, super-commentaries, and related works that engage with the text. It also reviews the inclusion of Jam' al-Jawāmi' in traditional curricula and its influence on subsequent scholarship. A comparative analysis with preceding and contemporaneous works identifies distinctive features contributing to its prominence.

Result and Discussion

The trajectory of Uṣūl al-Fiqh literature

The genesis of uṣūl al-fiqh postdates the 1st/7th century, as the immediate successors to Prophet Muḥammad, peace be upon him, saw no necessity to engage deeply with its discourse,

⁶ See for example, Saʿīd ibn ʿAlī Muḥammad al-Ḥumayrī, Dirāsah ḥawla al-muʾallif wa al-kitāb', in Tāj al-Dīn ʿAbd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī, Manʿ al-Mawāniʿ ʿan Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ (Beirut: Dār al-Bashāʾir, 1999), 43-59; Maḥmūd ʿAbd al-Raḥmān and Muntaṣir Muḥammad, 'Muqaddimat al-taḥqīq', in Jalāl al-Dīn ʿAbd al-Raḥmān al-Suyūṭī, Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-Sāṭiʿ fī Naẓm Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ (Cairo: Dār al-Kitāb al-Islāmī, 2006), 1: 193–231; ʿAqīlah Ḥusayn, 'Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ fī ʿIlm Uṣūl al-Fiqh li ʿAbd al-Wahhāb ibn ʿAlī Tāj al-Dīn ibn al-Subkī: Dirāsah wa Taḥqīq' (Ph.D diss., University of Algiers, al-Jazāʾir, 2005-2006).

⁷ Aḥmad Ibrāhīm Ḥasan al-Ḥasanāt, Al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī wa Manhajuhu fī Uṣūl al-Fiqh (Master diss., University of Jordan, 2002).

⁸ Şālih al-Zankī, Maʿālim al-Turāthī al-Uṣūlī: Kitāb Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ li al-Imām Ibn al-Subkī Namūdhajan (Kuala Lumpur: Dār al-Tajdīd, 2007).

⁴ See Matthew B. Ingalls, 'Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī and the Study of Muslim Commentaries from the Later Islamic Middle Period', Religion Compass, 10. 5 (2016), 118–30, https://doi.org/10.1111/rec3.12198.

⁵ See for example, Ahmed El Shamsy, 'The Ḥāshiya in Islamic Law: A Sketch of the Shāfi'ī Literature', Oriens 41.3/4 (January 2013), 289-315, http://dx.doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413404; Matthew Ingalls, The Anonymity of a Commentator (State University of New York Press, 2021); Walid A. Saleh, 'The Gloss as Intellectual History: The Hāshiyah on al-Kashshāf', Oriens 41. 3/4 (January 2013), 217– 59, https://doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413402; Aaron Spevack, The Archetypal Sunnī Scholar: Law, Theology, and Mysticism in the Synthesis of al-Bājūrī (Albany: State University of New York, 2014).

having directly received the Islamic sources. Moreover, the principles articulated in uşūl al-fiqh trace their origin to the methodologies employed by the Companions in deriving legal rulings from these sources.⁹ As the temporal and contextual gap widened from the era of revelation, there arose a need for new methodologies to authenticate sources and deduce laws applicable to novel cases and evolving circumstances. This quest led to the establishment of uşūl al-fiqh as a distinct discipline, initiated by the pioneering efforts of al-Shāfi'ī, whose work, al-Risālah, constituted the inaugural systematic exploration of basic legal principles, providing a foundational level of knowledge in the field. Despite recent studies questioning the immediate impact of al-Risālah on the development of uşūl al-fiqh,¹⁰ it is widely acknowledged as a pivotal turning point in the evolution of the genre.¹¹

During the 3rd/9th and 4th/10th centuries, usuli works either expanded upon or commented on al-Risālah or presented counterarguments and refutation to it (see Table.1).¹² Scholarly disagreements within Islamic law, theology, and related disciplines influenced the usuliliterature, giving rise to two major approaches to usuli writings: $tariqat^{13}$ al-mutakallimin (the style of theologians) and tariqat al-fuqahā' (the path of jurists).¹⁴ Using Bloom's understanding stage, we can interpret this division as responses to different intellectual needs: the former, which was adopted by the majority,¹⁵ focused on logical and objective analysis, while the latter adhered

¹¹ On the development of uşūl al-fiqh, see Shaʿbān Muḥammad Ismāʿīl, Uşūl al-fiqh: Tārīkhuhu wa rijāluhu (Riyad: Dār al-Mirrīkh, 1981); ʿAbd al-Salām Blājī, Taṭawwur ʿilm uṣūl al-fiqh wa tajadduduhu (Egypt: Dār al-Wafā', 2007); Hallaq, A history of Islamic legal theories.

¹² Ṭāha Jābir al-'Alwānī, ''Ilm uşūl al-fiqh, nash'atuhu wa-tārīquhu wa-tadwīnuhu,' al-Muslim al-Mu'āşir 15 (1978), 37–45.

¹³ The suffix tarīqah (style) is commonly used to denote these writing styles. However, some scholars use other similar terms such as manhaj (method) and madrasah (school).

¹⁴ Many contemporary scholars have provided detailed explanations of these writing methods in uşūl al-fiqh. For example, see Muḥammad al-Khuḍrī Bayk, Uṣūl al-fiqh (Egypt: al-Maktabah al-Tijāriyyah al-Kubrā, 1969), 8-11; Muḥammad Abū Zahrah, Uṣūl al-fiqh (Cairo: Dār al-Fikr al-ʿArabī, 1997), 19-24; Muḥammad ʿAbd al-Wahhāb Khallāf, ʿIlm uṣūl al-fiqh (Cairo: Dār al-Ḥadīth, 2003), 18–19; Ahmad Hasan, The principles of Islamic jurisprudence: The command of Sharīʿāh and juridical norm (New Delhi: Adam Publishers & Distributors, 1993), 18–20; Mohammad Hashim Kamali, Principles of Islamic jurisprudence, 2nd edn (Malaysia: Ilmiyah Publishers, 2000), 7-9.

¹⁵ This approach is profoundly shaped by the methodology of theological discourses, with prominent writers often associated with scholastic theology, encompassing both Ash'arites and Mu'tazilites. The adoption of this method is prevalent among scholars from Mālikī, Shāfi'ī, and Ḥanbalī schools. However, it is the Shāfi'ites who have made substantial contributions, leading to its identification as the method of closely to Hanafī legal practices.¹⁶ At the applying stage, we see how each method was practically used: the former aimed for broad applicability, while the latter served Hanafī needs.

⁹ Ibn Khaldūn, Muqaddimat Ibn Khaldūn, ed. 'Alī 'Abd al-Wāḥid Wāfī, 3rd edn (Cairo: Dār Nahḍat Miṣr, 1979), 3:1061.

¹⁰ The contribution of al-Shāfi'ī and his seminal work, al-Risālah, to the evolution of uṣūl al-fiqh is well acknowledged. Referring to him as the 'founding father' of this discipline signifies his role in elaborating on its principles and initiating systematic writing, rather than implying that he created these principles, which were already employed by the earlier generations. Drawing a parallel, it is akin to August Comte's recognition as the founding father of Sociology, despite discussions on sociological issues predating him. Despite this acknowledgment, some contemporary scholars have raised questions about the conventional perception of al-Shāfi'ī as the unequivocal founding father of uṣūl al-fiqh. See Wael B. Hallaq, A history of Islamic legal theories: an introduction to sunnī uṣūl al-fiqh (New York: Cambridge University Press, 2005), 21–35; Hallaq, 'Was al-Shāfi'ī the master architect of Islamic jurisprudence?' International Journal of Middle East Studies, 25.4 (1993), 587–605.

By the end of the 5th/11th century, as Ibn Khaldūn noted, four works emerged as authoritative texts in uṣūl al-fiqh, especially among the mutakallimūn. Two of these were by Ash'arīes: al-Burhān by Imām al-Ḥaramayn al-Juwaynī (d. 478/1085) and al-Mustaṣfā by Abū Ḥāmid al-Ghazālī (d. 505/1111). The other two were Mu'tazilī contributions: al-'Umad by al-Qādī 'Abd al-Jabbār (d. 415/1024) and its commentary, al-Mu'tamad by Abū al-Ḥusayn al-Baṣrī (d. 436/1044).¹⁷ Applying Bloom's fourth stage, analyzing, reveals each work's unique contributions and impact. Reflecting their author's theological backgrounds—Ash'arī or Mu'tazilī— these texts shaped distinctive approaches in uṣūl al-fiqh. Each set key precedents in balancing rational and textual evidence, ultimately becoming foundational references for later scholars.

Thereafter, $u \ xin u \ xin$

However, the voluminous nature of these works, representing the pinnacle of extended usvali literature (mutawwalat), posed challenges for readers. In response, scholars produced abridged versions of al-Mahsval and al-Ihkam adopting their style and opinions. This gave rise to two distinct approaches within the mutakallimun tradition: Madrasat (School of) al-Razi and Madrasat al-Amidi. As students increasingly favoured concise (mukhtasar) texts, scholars competed to produce succinct matn works that encapsulated the epitome of earlier treatises. Notable abridgements of al-Mahsval included al-Hasval included al-Hasval included al-Baydav i (d. 653/1258) and al-Tahsval i by Sirāj al-Dīn al-Urmavval (d. 682/1283). Qādī al-Baydava i (d. 719/1319) further condensed these works into al-Minhaj, widely accepted with over forty commentaries.¹⁹ Similarly, Ibn al-Hajib's (d. 646/1249) Mukhtasar, an auto-abridgement of his larger compendia al-Muntaha, a synopsis of Amidi's $al-Ihkam,^{20}$ also became a favoured textbook and base-text.

- ¹⁸ Ibn Khaldūn, Muqaddimah, 3:1062.
- ¹⁹ Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 83.

Shāfi'ites (țarīqat al-Shāfi'iyyah). See Mas'ūd ibn Mūsā Falūsī, Madrasat al-mutakallimīn wa manhajuhā fī dirāsat uşūl al-fiqh (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 2004).

¹⁶ For the historical development of uṣūlī thought within Ḥanafī School, see Haytham Khaznah, Taṭawwur al-fikr al-uṣūlī al-Ḥanafī (Jordan: Dār al-Rāzī, 2007).

¹⁷ Ibn Khaldūn, Muqaddimah, 3:1062.

²⁰ 'Alī Muḥammad Muʿawwaḍ, and 'Ādil Aḥmad 'Abd al-Mawjūd, 'Muqaddimat al-taḥqīq', in Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī, Rafʿ al-ḥājib ʿan Mukhtaṣar Ibn al-Ḥājib (Beirut: 'Ālam al-Kutub, 1999), 1:191– 225.

Period	Key Texts	Author	Significance
2nd/8th C	Al-Risālah	Al-Shāfī'ī (d. 204/820)	The first systematic work on uṣūl al-fiqh ; foundational text introducing legal methodology.
3rd- 4th/9th- 10th C	Sharḥ al-Risālah, Uṣūl al-Karkhī	Ibn Surayj (d. 306/918), al-Karkhī (d. 340/952)	Expansion upon al-Risālah ; or refutation of al-Risālah (establishment of juristic approach)
5th/11th C	Al-ʿUmad, al- Muʿtamad	Al-Qāḍī ʿAbd al- Jabbār, Al-Baṣrī	Contributions from Mu ^c tazilī scholars, incorporate rational theology.
	Al-Burhān, al- Mustaṣfā	Al-Juwaynī, Al-Ghazālī	Consolidated the mutakallimūn approach, integrating theology with legal theory, from Ash [°] arī perspective.
6th/12 th C	Al-Maḥṣūl, al- lḥkām	Al-Rāzī, al-Āmidī	Pinnacle of extended works (muțawwalāt) in uṣūl ; synthesized earlier foundational texts.
7th/13th C	Mukhtaşar, al- Minhāj	Ibn al-Ḥājib, al- Bayḍāwī	Era of concise texts (mukhtaṣarāt); school of al-Rāzī and al-Āmidī among mutakallimūn
8th/14th C	Jamʻal-Jawāmiʻ	Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī (d. 771/1370)	Integrated and refined previous approaches; established as a comprehensive matn for uṣūl .

Table 1. Milestones in the development of uṣūl al-fiqh texts, from foundational treatises to concise compendiums like Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ.

By the time of al-Subkī, Minhāj and Mukhtaṣar had become preferred choices for studying, teaching, and writing on uṣūl al-fiqh. Al-Subkī himself studied both works and compiled commentaries on them. In 752/1351, he completed his commentary on Minhāj, titled al-Ibhāj fī sharḥ al-Minhāj, marking his initial foray into uṣūl al-fiqh scholarship before the age of 25.²¹ By 759/1358, he finished Raf^e al-ḥājib 'an Mukhtaṣār Ibn al-Ḥājib,²² a concise commentary on Mukhtaṣar, distinct from his earlier extensive work, al-Taʿlīqah.²³ This dual exposure acquainted him with the methods of both schools, enabling him to develop an independent uṣūlī perspective free from allegiance to any single scholar. In alignment with Bloom's final stage, creating, al-Subkī produced his magnum opus, Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, which synthesized and innovated upon prior uṣūl al-fiqh scholarship. This work introduced a novel style and methodology, blending earlier approaches with his own insights.

Significance of Jam' al-Jawāmi' in Usul al-Fiqh Literature

Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c marked a paradigm shift in uṣūlī literature, moving beyond the prevailing focus on the works of al-Rāzī and al-Āmidī. It gained acceptance in scholarly circles as both a curriculum textbook and a foundational reference for uṣūl al-fiqh writings. Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī skillfully integrated the distinct approaches of al-Rāzī's and al-Āmidī's schools creating a concise yet comprehensive matn that addressed all major topics in uṣūl al-fiqh presented in intricate, abstract language. Al-Subkī himself described his work as follows:

²¹ He completed it on Friday morning, Sixteenth of Ṣafar, 752 from his father's office at Madrasah al-ʿĀdiliyyah, Damascus. Taqī al-Dīn al-Subkī, and Tāj al-Dīn ʿAbd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī, al-Ibhāj fī Sharḥ al-Minhāj, ed. Maḥmūd Amīn al-Sayyid (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 2004), 3:233.

²² He completed the entire work in less than two years, as he started it from the beginning of 758/1357 and completed it on Wednesday evening, 23 $Rab\bar{i}^{c}$ al- $\bar{A}khir$, 759/1358. Al-Subkī, Raf^{c} al- $h\bar{a}jib$, 4:647.

²³ This is considered among his extinct works. However, there are many references to it in his other works. For example, see al-Subkī, Man^c al-mawāni^c, 163; Raf^c al-ḥājib, 4:70, 167, 192, and 209.

 $Jam^{c} al-jaw\bar{a}mi^{c}$ brings forth clear maxims (al-qawāʿid al-qawāți^c) from both foundational sciences,²⁴ attaining the level of those endowed with profound diligence and readiness in comprehending the two foundational disciplines. It originates from nearly a hundred compositions, as a fountain that quenches [the thirst] and quells [the hunger], encompassing the quintessence of my two commentaries on al-Mukhtaṣar and al-Minhāj,²⁵ enriched with numerous additions.²⁶

Al-Subkī's access to an extensive array of manuscripts, facilitated by his scholarly lineage and the rich libraries of Egypt and Syria, enabled him to incorporate a wide range of scholarly opinions on each topic, verified against the original source,²⁷ many of which are extinct today. He also integrated the views of his teachers, notably his father Taqī al-Dīn al-Subkī (d. 756/1355), whose twenty-five distinct opinions are preserved in Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.²⁸ Moreover, al-Subkī presented his preferred opinions on various discussions, albeit without providing justifications, consistent with the inherent constraints of a matn work. Consequently, Jam^c al-jawāmi^c represents a comprehensive synthesis of uṣūl al-fiqh discourse from its inception to the author's time, standing as an original and perhaps the culmination of the matn work of its genre.

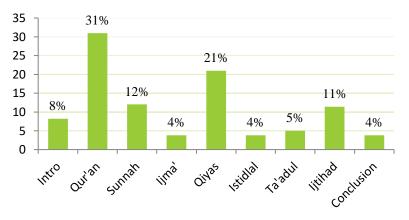

Figure 1. Chapter-wise division of Jam' al-jawāmi'

The structure of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c encompasses an introduction, followed by seven chapters (see Figure 1): al-Qur²ān (the Book), Sunnah, ijmā^c (consensus), qiyās (analogy), al-istidlāl

²⁴ Two fields of uşūl are the uşūl al-fiqh and uşūl al-dīn. Even though Jam^c al-jawāmi^c discusses both areas, its major portion covers the principles of fiqh, while analysis of the issues related to uşū al-din is mainly in the prefatorial discussions and at the end of the final chapter ijtihād. See M. Jabir Ali Hudawi, and Hikmatullah, 'Al-Subkī's Jam^c al-jawāmi^c: a critical appraisal of its structure and contents', The Journal of Rotterdam Islamic and Social Sciences, 5.1 (2014), 59–79 https://www.iriss.nl/index.php/IRISS/article/view/43

²⁵ They are Raf^c al-hājib and al-Ibhāj respectively.

²⁶ Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī, Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ fī uṣūl al-fiqh, ed. ʿAbd al-Munʿim Khalīl Ibrāhīm (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 2003), 11.

²⁷ In Man^c*al-mawāni*^c (p. 84), he recounts the considerable time, labour, and dedication invested in the completion of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c. His house was inundated with multiple draft copies of the manuscript, reflecting the meticulous and continuous review process he undertook.

²⁸ Jabir Ali Hudawi, 'al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi',' 90.

(inference), $al-ta`\bar{a}dul$ wa $al-tar\bar{a}jih$ (equilibrium and preponderance), and $ijth\bar{a}d$. The final chapter briefly discusses major theological themes ($us\bar{u}l al-d\bar{n}$). Notably, the conclusion offers insights into tasawwuf and the author's methodology. The text thus provides readers with the essence of $us\bar{u}l al-fiqh$ in a concise, memorizable format.²⁹

Al-Subkī's confidence in the work's perfection is evident from his caution against hasty rejection or attempts at abridgment, asserting that every aspect of the work is meticulously crafted.³⁰ He emphasizes the potency of its language, suggesting that "even the deaf can hear and the blind can pay attention to it," and urged his readers "to memorize its sentences, especially those that deviate from others."³¹ The enduring relevance of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c in the uṣūl al-fiqh literature is underscored by its inclusion as the sole matn representing the uṣūl al-fiqh genre in Majmū^c muhimmāt al-mutūn, a collection of the most significant matns across various Islamic disciplines.³²

Early Reception of the Work

Al-Subkī completed the writing of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c, as documented in some editions, on the night of the 11th Dhūlhijjah, 760/1358, from his residence in Damascus,³³ at the age of 33. Serving the demand of his time for a succinct epitome, Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c emerged as the preferred choice for students, teachers, and scholars alike. Its acceptance as a text for uşūl al-fiqh studies began during the author's lifetime, facilitated by the teacher-oriented and text-based educational system prevalent at the time. As a professor in well-known madrasahs in Syria and Egypt, al-Subkī imparted teaching the work to his uşūlī students. Biographical dictionaries record a few individuals who studied it directly from the author, such as Burhān al-Dīn Abū Ishāq Ibrahīm ibn Ahmad (d. 819/1416).³⁴

In Islamic history, receiving knowledge directly from its source with an ijazah (license) was considered a privilege. One of the early recipients of such permission from al-Subkī was 'Alī ibn Aḥmad Abū al-Ḥasan al-Adamī (d. 813/1410), who obtained ijāzah to teach Jam' al-jawāmi'.³⁵ Al-Sakhāwī records him as the first to receive such an ijāzah after meticulous (taḥqīqan) reading of the text from the author. 'Alī ibn Aḥmad also studied a significant portion of author's auto-commentary Man' al-mawāni', making him a potential reference for early commentators seeking ²⁹ Jabir Ali Hudawi, and Hikmatullah, 'Al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmi". On methodology and terminology employed by al-Subkī in the text, see Mohamed Jabir Ali al-Hudawi, and Hikmatullah Babu Sahib, 'Methodology of classical uṣūlī texts: a critical appraisal of Tāj al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmi", Indonesian Journal of Islamic Literature and Muslim Society, 8.2 (2023), 24–49 https://doi.org/10.22515/islimus.v8i1.4440; Mohamed Jabir Ali al-Hudawi, 'Terminologies of classical uṣūlī texts: a study of al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmi", Islamic Insight Journal of Islamic Studies (IIJIS), 5.1 (2022), 11–38 ">https://www.islamicinsight.in/index.php/islamicinsight/article/view/19>.

³⁰ Al-Subkī, Jam' al-jawāmi', 132.

³¹ Ibid., 133.

³² Majmū'atun min al-Mu'allifīn, Majmū' muhimmāt al-mutūn (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1994).

³³ Al-Subkī, Jamʿal-jawāmiʿ, 133; Carl Brockelmann, Tārīkh al-adab al-ʿArabī, trans. Maḥmūd Fahmī Ḥijāzī (Egypt: al-Hayʾat al-Miṣriyyah al-ʿĀmmah li al-Kitāb, 1995), 6: 354; David W. Myhrman, 'Introduction and notes" in Tāj al-Dīn ʿAbd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī, Muʿīd al-niʿam wa mubīd al-niqam (London: Luzac &Co., 1978), 26.

³⁴ Shams al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Sakhāwī, al-Đaw' al-lāmi' li ahl al-qarn al-tāsi' (Beirut: Dār Maktabat al-Ḥayāt), 12:52.

³⁵ Al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw' al-lāmi', 5:164.

to understand the author's intention. Another example is Muḥammad ibn 'Alī Nāṣir al-Dīn al-Silmī (789/1388), known as Ibn Abī al-'Ashā'ir, who was granted ijāzah in 767/1365 at Damascus, recognizing his mastery of the work.³⁶

Given his esteemed reputation and fame, it was not only the author and his students who relied on Jam^cal-jawāmi^c. Many of his colleagues and prominent figures of his time were interested in reading, teaching, and even writing commentaries on it. The renowned historian and pioneer writer Ṣalāḥ al-Dīn al-Ṣafadī (d. 764/1363), a student of his father Taqī al-Dīn al-Subkī, copied the entire text and engaged in discussions during the author's ḥalqah.³⁷ Notably, al-Ṣafadī, who was twice the age of the author, passed away within four years of the release of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, demonstrating the immediate reception of the text. He also records that the author's appeal to "memorize its sentences" found resonances, as Taqī al-Dīn Abū Ḥatim (d. 764/1363), al-Subkī's brother, memorized the entire text in Egypt.³⁸

The wider acceptance of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c naturally attracted critiques and queries. Scholars sought his clarification on various issues, quotes, opinions, sentence structure, and even word choices within the text. For instance, Muḥammad al-Zubayrī al-Asadī (d. 808/1405), three years older than al-Subkī, studied the text from the author and later presented a list of questions and objections titled al-Burūq al-lawāmi^c. The author praises the work as a best seller, stating that its benefits reached everyone, and students gravitated towards it over other epitomes, with Jam^c al-jawāmi^c shining like a moon among stars.³⁹ Al-Subkī responded with a detailed explanation⁴⁰ in 762/1361, just two years after the publication of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.⁴¹ Additionally, al-Asadī authored a commentary, Tashnīf al-masāmi^c fī sharḥ Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.⁴² Similarly, al-Sayyid al-Sharīf Jamāl al-Dīn al-Khurāsanī also presented a few queries upon his visit from Ḥalab.⁴³

Al-Subkī proudly asserted that his work received acclaim to the extent that there was no gathering without discussion about it.⁴⁴ Motivated by this, he authored an auto-commentary, Man^c al-mawāni^c, solely addressing these questions and providing clarification for objections raised from various quarters, including his students.⁴⁵ Surprisingly, these scholarly engagements unfolded within a few years of the release of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, with the final updates to Man^c al-

⁴² Al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw' al-lāmi', 9:21.

⁴³ Al-Subkī answered these questions through a replay accepting some and debating others, which he summarised in the second part of Man^{c} al-mawāni^{c} (pp. 280–292).

44 Al-Subkī al-mawāni (pp. 280–292).

⁴⁵ Various queries asked by students during his lecturing on the text with his replies is the third part of Man^{c} al-mawāni^{c} (p. 293–551).

³⁶ Aḥmad Ibn Ḥajar al-ʿAsqalānī, al-Durar al-kāminah fī aʿyān al-mi`ah al-thāminah (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1997), 4:54; Myhrman, 34; See also, Abū al-Fidāʿ Murtaḍā ʿAlī, 'Qism al-dirāsah', in Jalāl al-Dīn Abū ʿAbd Allāh Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad al-Maḥallī, al-Badr al-țāliʿ fī ḥall Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ (Beirut: Mu'assasat al-Risālah Nāshirūn, 2005), 1:42.

³⁷ Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb al-Subkī, Ṭabaqāt al-Shāfiʿiyyah al-kubrā, ed. by Maḥmūd Muḥammad al-Ṭanāḥī, and 'Abd al-Fattāḥ (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Kutub al-'Arabiyyah, 1992), 10:6.

³⁸ Şalāḥ al-Dīn Khalīl al-Ṣafadī, A'yān al-ʿaṣr wa-aʿwān al-naṣr, ed. by ʿAlī Abū Zayd (Beirut: Dār al-fikr, 1998), 4:279.

³⁹ Al-Subkī, Manʿ al-mawāniʿ, 73.

⁴⁰ These questions and answers are the first part of Man[•]al-mawāni[•] (pp. 73–279).

⁴¹ These questions and answers are the first part of Man[•]al-mawāni[•] (pp. 73–279).

mawāni' completed in Sha'bān, 767/1366.46

A Standard Textbook for Study of Uṣūl al-Fiqh

By the ninth century, Jam^c al-jawāmi^c had firmly established itself as a seminal textbook, partially supplanting prior popular works in the field. This transition marked a turning point, drawing scholars from diverse geographical and madhhab backgrounds. An examination of al-Daw^o al-lāmi^c, a biographical dictionary of 9th/15th-century Islamic scholars by Shams al-Dīn al-Sakhāwī (d. 902/1497), exposes numerous scholars who not only studied but also memorized and taught Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. Figures such as Aḥmad ibn Muḥammad Abū al-ʿAbbās al-Shughrī (d. 885/1480),⁴⁷ Ja ʿfar ibn Ibrāhīm al-Sanhūrī (b. 810/1407),⁴⁸ Ibn Rajab Aḥmad ibn Muḥammad (b. 847/1443),⁴⁹ and Muḥammad ibn Uthmān Dimyāthī (b. 852/1448)⁵⁰ are illustrative examples of 9th/15th-centuary scholars who engaged with Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. The practice of memorizing the text was common, as evidenced by the experiences of Muḥammad ibn Khalīl Abū Ḥamid al-Balbisī (b. 817/1414),⁵¹ Khalīl ibn ʿAbdillāh (b. 825/1422),⁵² Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad Amīn al-Dīn al-Abbāsī (b. 838/1434),⁵³ and Muḥammad ibn Aḥamad ibn Ibrāhīm (d. 873/1468).⁵⁴

This widespread acceptance of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c among students and educators prompted many to compose commentaries on it. Most of the commentators have studied Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c and later given lectures on it together with their commentaries. Jalāl al-Dīn al-Maḥallī (d. 864/1459),⁵⁵ for instance, has been teaching Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c, with students like Muḥammad ibn 'Abdillāh (b. 831/1428) studying both the text and al-Maḥallī's commentary.⁵⁶ Interestingly, al-Maḥallī's teachers such as al-Walī al-'Irāqī, Ibn Ḥajar al-'Asqalānī, and 'Izz ibn Jamā'ah, who was a student of al-Subkī, all engaged in studying, teaching, and writing commentaries on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. Subsequently, al-Maḥallī's commentary became a primary text for approaching the matn, as seen in the case of 'Abd al-Wahhāb al-Sha'rānī (d. 973/1565), who studied both from Zayn al-Dīn al-Maḥallī.⁵⁷

⁴⁶ Ibid., 551.

⁴⁷ Al-Sakhāwī notes his commentary on Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ and indicates that he typically relies on it in his uṣūlī writings, as if he has memorized it, al-Sakhāwī, al-Jawʾ al-lāmiʿ, 2:190.

48 al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw' al-lāmi' 3:68.

⁴⁹ al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw' al-lāmi' 2:121.

⁵⁰ He has additionally studied with al-Kamāl ibn Abī Sharīf, his commentary on Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, See ibid., 8:145.

⁵¹ Ibid., 7:234.

- ⁵² Ibid., 3:198.
- ⁵³ Ibid., 9:25.
- ⁵⁴ Ibid., 6:284.

⁵⁵ He is Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad ibn Muḥammad, Jalāl al-Dīn al-Maḥallī, bestowed with the title of al-Shāriḥ al-muḥaqqiq (the verifying commentator) for his significant contributions to the commentary on major works, including al-Waraqāt in uṣūl, al-Minhāj in fiqh and half of al-Jalālayn in tafsīr. Born in 791/1389 in Cairo, he pursued his studies under al-Jalāl al-Bulqīnī and other distinguished scholars of his era such as al-Jalāl al-Bulqīnī, al-Walī al-ʿIrāqī, Ibn Ḥajar and ʿIzz ibn Jamāʿah. Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāliʿ bi maḥāsin man baʿda al-qarn al-sābiʿ, ed. by Khalīl al-Manṣūr (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1998), 2:42; al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw', 7:40.

⁵⁶ See al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw', 8:95.

⁵⁷ Najm al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib al-sā'irah bi a'yān al-mi'ah al-ʿāshirah. ed. by Khalīl al-Manṣūr (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1997), 3:158.

The 10th/16th century witnessed a broader acceptance of the text. Renowned polymath Jalāl al-Dīn al-Suyūţī (d. 911/1505) studied portions of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c from al-ʿIzz Aḥmad ibn Ibrāhīm al-Kinānī, a Ḥanbalī qādī al-qudāt.⁵⁸ Jalāl al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn ʿUmar al-Ḥalabī (d. 921/1515),⁵⁹ Shihāb al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad (d. 937/1530),⁶⁰ are few to name who memorized the entire text. Scholars in various regions issued ijāzah or certificates upon completing the study of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, exemplified by Zakariyyah al-Anṣārī (d. 926/1520) granting ijāzah to Maḥmūd ibn Muḥammad ibn al-Riḍā to teach the text.⁶¹

Jam^c al-jawāmi^c maintained its distinct position for centuries. Notably, al-Ghazzī acknowledged his study of the text under Ḥasan ibn Iskandar (d. 950/1543).⁶² Abū al-Mawāhib,⁶³ a Ḥanbalī scholar in the 12/18th century, attended lectures on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c by al-Najm al-Dīn al-Ghazzī al-ʿĀmirī at al-Madrasah al-Shāmiyyah in Damascus. Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī al-Shawkānī (d. 1255/1839), a prominent Yemeni scholar of the 13/19th century, considered a mujtahid, studied portions of the texts from Sharaf al-Dīn ʿAbd al-Qādir ibn Aḥmad (d. 1207/1792)⁶⁴ and later delivered lectures with its commentaries and supercommentaries.⁶⁵ Al-Shawkānī lists Jam^c al-jawāmi^c among the works crucial for ijtihad in uṣūlī al-fiqh.⁶⁶ 19th century Indian reformist Siddīq Ḥasan Khān (d. 1307/1890) advises those who study uṣūl to learn the text by heart and recommends its commentaries for further mastery of the subject.⁶⁷

Beyond its relevance to uṣūl al-fiqh, Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ was referred to for subjects such as theology and taṣawwuf. This led to the production of works specifically analysing its theological content.⁶⁸ Similarly, some ṣūfī shaykhs incorporated the conclusion of Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ into their teaching of taṣawwuf, evidenced by the practice of ʿAlī ibn ʿAṭiyyah al-Ḥamawī (d. 936/1529), who granted ijāzah on the taṣawwuf portion to his followers like ʿAlī ibn Maymūn.⁶⁹

It is worth mentioning that the popularity of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c transcended geographic and madhhab boundaries. As a Shāfi^cī work, Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c served as a primary textbook for higher studies in uṣūl al-fiqh among Shāfi^cites globally,⁷⁰ including regions such as Egypt, Palestine, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Malaysia, Singapore, Somalia, Syria, Thailand, Yemen, and beyond. Jam^c al-

⁵⁸ Najm al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib 1:228.

⁵⁹ Najm al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib 1:69–70; 'Abd al-Ḥayy ibn al-'Imād, Shadharāt al-dhahab fī akhbār man dhahab (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1998), 8:113–14.

- ⁶⁰ Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 2:22.
- ⁶¹ Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 2:244.
- ⁶² Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 2:135.

⁶³ Abū al-Mawāhib ibn 'Abd al-Bāqī ibn 'Abd al-Qādir, born in 1044, was the Ḥanbalī mufti in Damascus. Muḥammad Ḥalīl al-Murādī, Silk al-durar fī a'yān al-qarn al-thānī 'ashar, ed. by Akram Ḥasan al-'Ulabī (Beirut: Dār al-Ṣādir, 2002), 1:79–81.

- ⁶⁴ Al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāli^c, 1:253.
- ⁶⁵ Al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāli^c, 1:318.
- ⁶⁶ Al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāli, 2:22.

⁶⁷ Siddīq ibn Ḥasan al-Qannawjī, Abjad al-ʿulūm (Lahore: al-Maktabah al-Quddūsiyyah, 1983), 1:368.

⁶⁸ For example, 'Abd Allāh Bākathīr al-Ḥāḍramī versified the theological portion. See, Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 140.

⁶⁹ Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 2:205.

⁷⁰ Ṭāhā Jābir al-ʿAlwānī, Uṣūl al-fiqh al-Islāmī manhaj baḥth wa maʿrifah, 2nd edn (Riyad: al-Dār al-ʿIlmiyyah li al-Kitāb al-Islāmī, 1995), 68. jawāmi[•] not only found a place in traditional educational settings such as masjid-based classes, madāris, and khanqāh but also secured a position within the formal curricula of renowned Islamic universities.

Al-Azhar University, one of the oldest and most respected institutions in the Muslim world, prescribed Jam^c al-jawāmi^c as the textbook for uṣūl al-fiqh for centuries.⁷¹ This text was traditionally taught alongside Sharḥ al-Maḥallī, while additional glosses recommended for further reading.⁷² This inspired al-Azhar scholars like al-Bannānī, al-ʿAṭṭār and al-Shirbīnī to compose super commentaries and marginalia on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c and al-Maḥallī's commentary. Despite its removal from the official curriculum, the text continued to attract interest among professors and students of al-Azhar. One notable example is Muḥammad Ḥasnayn Makhlūf (d. 1355/1936), a Mālikī scholar and key reformer at al-Azhar, who spent nearly four decades lecturing on the text for self-interested students,⁷³ and produced two-volume ḥāshiyah as well as treatise on the text.⁷⁴

As a leading institution, al-Azhar University set standard for other Islamic institutions across the world. Al-Zaytūnah University also designated Jam' al-jawāmi' as the uṣūlī text for extended periods.⁷⁵ Zaytūnah professors like Ḥasan al-Saynāwī⁷⁶ contributed further commentaries on the work.⁷⁷ However, educational paradigms have gradually shifted, with modern Islamic universities moving from a text-based approach to subject-based learning, focusing on broader topics rather than relying solely on specific classical texts like Jam'al-jawāmi'.

Nonetheless, some contemporary religious institutions, such as Darul Huda Islamic University in Kerala, India,⁷⁸ and Zaytuna College in Berkeley, California, continue to endorse Jam^c al-jawāmi^c as the main uşūlī textbook. Zaytuna College, for instance, not only prescribes Jam^c al-

⁷² See the comments of 'Abd Allāh Drāz in "Muqaddimah" to al-Shāțibī, Ibrāhīm ibn Mūsā, al-Muwāfaqāt fī uṣūl al-sharīʿah ed. by 'Abd Allāh Darrāz (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 2005), 1:9.

⁷³ See Tarjamat al-Shaykh Muḥammad Ḥasnayn Makhlūf al-ʿAdwī in Abū Isḥāq Ibrāhīm ibn Mūsā al-Shāṭibī, al-Muwāfaqāt fī uṣūl al-sharīʿah, ed. by Abū ʿUbaydah Mashhūr ibn Ḥasan (Saudi Arabia: Dār Ibn ʿAffān, 1997), 7:70; ʿAbd Allāh Muṣṭafā al-Marāghī, al-Fatḥ al-Mubīn fī Ṭabaqāt al-Uṣūliyyīn, 2nd edn (Beirut: Muḥammad Amīn Damj, 1974), 3:190.

⁷⁴ See his work on some linguistic discussions of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, al-Muțlaq wa al-muqayyad ^c*inda al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī fī kitabihi Jam*^c al-jawāmi^c which is edited by Aḥmad al-Faylālī and published from Oman, and another work on the introduction, al-Qawl al-Jāmi^c fī al-Kashfi^c an Sharḥ Muqaddimat Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.

⁷⁵ 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi',' 11.

⁷⁶ Hasan ibn al-Hāj 'Umar ibn 'Abd Allāh al-Saynāwī was a senior lecturer of Qur'anic recitation in the Zaytunah University.

⁷⁷ It was written on 22, Dhū al-Ḥajj, 1347/January 1928, and received the endorsement of the academic body of Zaytunah University, including Muḥammad Ṭāhir ibn ʿĀshūr. The work has been published in three volumes. Ḥasan ibn al-Ḥāj ʿUmar al-Saynāwī, al-Aṣl al-jāmiʿ li īḍāḥ al-durar al-manẓūmah fī salk Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ (Tunisia: Maṭbaʿat al-Nahḍah, 1928).

⁷⁸ Darul Huda, founded in 1986 as an Islamic Academy, adopted a reformative approach to religious education by introducing 'integrated curricula' that encompass both religious and contemporary sciences. In 2009, it attained the status of a private Islamic university and became a member of international organizations such as The Federation of the Universities of the Islamic World in Morocco and the League of Islamic Universities in Cairo. With its central campus in Malappuram, DH has 27 affiliated colleges and 6 campuses across different states of India. It embarks education on approximately ten thousand students, offering full scholarships. For details, refer to www.dhiu.in.

⁷¹ 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi", 11.

jawāmi[°] but also incorporates one of its latest commentaries, al-Sharḥ al-jadīd⁷⁹ by [°]Abd al-Karīm al-Dabbān (d. 1413/1993), alongside additional aids like al-Ghayth al-hāmi[°], a commentary by Walī al-Dīn al-[°]Irāqī, and various marginal-glosses.⁸⁰

At Darul Huda, the text, along with Sharḥ al-Maḥallī are essential components of the curriculum for Shāfiʿī students, studied over three years starting in the second year of the degree programme and extending through the first year of the master's programme. The instruction follows a traditional method, emphasizing textual reading, with explanations in local language (Malayalam). Recent curriculum reforms have refixed the curricula of Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ to five semesters at the degree level. Notably, the focus has shifted from conventional textual analysis, criticized for focussing on sentence structure (ʿibārah), to a more thematic approach. Now, Sharḥ al-Maḥallī is covered in the second semester, followed by a deeper focus on thematic discussions in the matn, linking it to contemporary issues with references to modern textbooks.⁸¹

Jam^c al-jawāmi^c remains highly regarded in the traditional Islamic education system. Its widespread study is evident in various regions, such as Iraq, where it is studied in masjid-based study circles (halqah), particularly in the Kurdistan area.⁸² In some locations, an abridged version, Lubb al-uşūl by Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī is preferred.⁸³ Indonesia, with its pesantren (the traditional masjid-based madrasah) education, integrates uşūl al-fiqh as a compulsory subject, wherein Jam^c al-jawāmi^c is a pivotal text, studied alongside the Sharḥ of al-Maḥallī, marginalia by al-Bannānī, and glosses by al-Shirbīnī.⁸⁴

Kerala, a South Indian state predominantly following the Shāfi^cī school, showcases the enduring popularity of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. Widely used in traditional Pallidars (masjid-based madrasah),⁸⁵ it is taught at the third stage of religious education.⁸⁶ As a prerequisite, students typically complete a foundational text like al-Waraqāt by Imām al-Ḥaramayn. Additionally, it is part of the curriculum in Sharī^cah colleges like Jāmi^cah al-Nūriyyah, Pattikkad, and its junior ⁸² Hasan Khālid Muṣṭafā Maḥmūd, Naqd uslūb al-Zalmī wa naqḍu iʿtirāḍātihi (Irbil-Iraq, 2010), 32.

⁸³ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, 164; Zubair K, 'Religious higher education in Kerala and Java province of Indonesia: a comparative study,' (PhD thesis, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, 2010), 167.

- ⁸⁴ Zubair, 'Religious higher education,' 138–78.
- ⁸⁵ See on Pallidars system of education in Kerala, Zubair, 'Religious Higher Education', 179–242.

⁷⁹ 'Abd al-Karīm ibn Ḥumādī al-Dabān, al-Sharḥ al-jadīd 'alā Jam' al-jawāmi', ed. by Salāḥ Sāyir Farhān al-'Ubaydī (Iraq: Dār Ibn Ḥazam, 2016).

⁸⁰ 'Master Degree Curriculum: General Courses', Zaytuna College, accessed October 21, 2023 <https://zaytuna.edu/academics/masters-degree/ma-courses>

⁸¹ Uṣūl studies in Darul Huda also begin with al-Waraqāt by Imām al-Ḥaramayn at its senior secondary course, followed by a contemporary text before studying Jamʿal-jawāmiʿ. See Jāmiah Dār al-Hudā al-Islāmiyyah, Kerala, al-Manhaj al-Dirāsī 2022-2023, marḥalat al-dirāsāt al-āliyah, 65-69.

⁸⁶ Muslims in Kerala maintain a well-organized system of religious education, encompassing thousands of madrasas for universal primary religious education, numerous pallidars—masjid-based institutions providing traditional higher religious education—and hundreds of institutions offering integrated religious higher education. While focusing on religious education, students in these institutions are also exposed to modern education, either through reformed curricula that incorporate modern subjects or by attending the regular secular schools. See Mohammed Salih T. 'Integrated Education Models: Modernisation, Community Empowerment and Sunni Islamic Social Mobilisation in Kerala, South India' (PhD diss., Pondicherry University, 2022).

colleges.⁸⁷ Despite Muslims constituting only 26% of the total population, the widespread use of the text, along with Sharḥ al-Maḥallī, is evident from the consistent high demand in the local book market.⁸⁸

Jam^c al-jawāmi^c has transcended its Shāfi^cī origins, gaining recognition among followers of diverse juristic schools, notably the Mālikites. Shaykh Ḥammād ibn Muaḥmmad (d. 1418/1997), a great muḥaddis from Mali, reminisces about studying Jam^c al-jawāmi^c due to the scarcity of Mālikites texts, memorizing it and versifying its intricate portions. He describes it as the final work that should be studied after al-Waraqāt and Irshād al-fuḥūl and recommends memorizing al-Kawkab al-sāți^c, its versification by al-Suyūțī.⁸⁹ The work continues to be popular in Mali's traditional religious education system known as Majliss or Mayss.⁹⁰

Mauritania, with its unique maḥāḍir (sing. maḥḍarah) system,⁹¹ incorporates Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ in the final year of three-stage traditional education,⁹² after studying al-Waraqāt and Marāqī al-saʿūd by Sayyidī ʿAbd Allāh al-Shanqīṭī.⁹³ In Algeria, scholars like Muḥammad ibn Mālik al-Fulanī studied and produced a commentary,⁹⁴ and ʿAbd al-Raḥmān al-Tanlānī (d. 1231/1816) read the text with Sharḥ al-Maḥallī from Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad Mayārah al-Fāsī while cross-referring to its various commentary works.⁹⁵ It's acceptance among Tunisia scholars is evident in the biography of Muḥammad ibn ʿIqāb (d. 851/1447), Muḥammad ibn Abī al-Faḍl Kharūf (d. 966/1558),⁹⁶ and Muḥammad Ṭāhir (d. 1284/1868), grandfather of great maqāṣid scholar Ibn ʿĀshūr.⁹⁷ A survey of Mālikī biographical dictionaries such as Shajarat al-nūr al-zakiyyah demonstrates the popularity of Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ among Mālikī scholars, especially African countries.⁹⁸

⁸⁹ 'Abd al-Awwal ibn Ḥammād al-Anṣārī, al-Majmū' fī tarjamat al-'Allāmah al-Muḥaddis al-Shaykh Ḥammād ibn Muaḥmmad al-Anṣārī, Maktabah al-Shāmilah, 1:264, 563, 401.

⁹⁰ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, 165.

⁹¹ For more details on the maḥḍarah educational institution of Mauritania see Al-Khalīl al-Naḥwī, Bilād Shanqīt al-Manārah wa-al-Rabāț (Tunisia: al-Munaẓẓamah al-ʿArabiyyah liʾl-Tarbiyah waʾl-Thaqāfah waʾl-ʿUlūm, 1987), 47.

⁹² Introduction, Irshād al-Muqallidīn, 39–40.

⁹³ Al-Khalīl al-Naḥwī, Bilād Shanqīt, 213–17.

⁹⁴ Muḥammad Bay Balālam, Irshād al-ḥā'ir 'ilā ma'rifat qabīlat Fulān fī janūb al-Jazā'ir (al-Maktabah al-Shāmilah), 88, 79.

⁹⁵ Muḥammad Bay Balālam, al-Ghusn al-dānī fī tarjamat al-Shaykh al-Tanlānī (al-Maktabah al-Shāmilah), 1:11.

⁹⁶ Muḥammad Maḥfūẓ, Tarājum al-muʾallifīn al-Tūnisiyyīn, 2nd edn (Beirut: Dār al-Gharb al-Islām, 1994), 3:408, 2:193.

97 Maḥfūẓ, Tarājum, 3:300.

⁹⁸ See Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad ibn 'Umar Makhlūf, Shajarat al-nūr al-zakiyyah fī ṭabaqāt al-Mālikiyyah (Lebanon, Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 2003), 1:594, 1:624.

⁸⁷ Shafeeq Hussain V. 'A proposed framework for the curriculum of Islamic education: Implications on the curricula of Islamic religious higher education institutions of Kerala, India' (PhD thesis, International Islamic University Malaysia, 2011), 278.

⁸⁸ According to Zainuddeen VP Maloor, the General Manager of BOOK PLUS publishers, over one thousand copies are sold exclusively through the BOOK PLUS outlet, inaugurated recently, and distributes to a limited number of religious institutions. Numerous other publishers print and distribute the text across Kerala. Most editions include the *Shar*h of *al-Ma*hallī, marginalia by al-Bannānī and glosses by al-Shirbīnī. Interview with author on 26, July 2022.

Despite coming from Turkiye, a predominantly Ḥanafī state, the great luminary Bediuzzaman Said Nursi (d. 1960) memorized Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ in just one week.⁹⁹ The Hanbalī-Salafī scholar 'Abd al-Raḥmān Ḥasan (d. 1285/1869), grandson of Muḥammad ibn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, also studied the text with Sharḥ al-Maḥallī from Ḥasan al-Quwaysinī receiving ijāzah during his stay in Egypt.¹⁰⁰ Muḥammad Amīn ibn Abdillāh (d. 1441/2019), an influential Shāfiʿīsalafī scholar from Ethiopia, not only studied but also penned a taqrīrāt.¹⁰¹ The existence of hundreds of manuscripts of Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ and its various known and unknown commentaries worldwide affirms its global reputation.¹⁰²

Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c maintains its contemporary relevance through online classes on platforms like YouTube and Facebook, spanning multiple languages. A noteworthy example is Shaykh Hasan ibn 'Abd al-Hamīd Bukhārī's weekly lectures from Masjid al-Haram, Makkah.¹⁰³ Recently, he supervised the publication of a comprehensive academic study (al-haqībah al-taʿlīmiyyah) of the text in four volumes from Saudi Arabia. Along with the matn, the edition includes corresponding lines from al-Kawkab al-sāti', diagrams (tashjīr) summarizing concepts and activities, and a QR code for audio of the lectures.¹⁰⁴ It reflects a contemporary trend of rendering classical texts pertinent to current learning methods by adapting to modern educational contexts. This underscores the initiative to bridge classical wisdom with modern learning approaches, affirming the enduring significance of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c in today's educational landscape.

The Commentary (Sharḥ) Works on Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ

The recognition of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c as a textbook for uṣūlī studies has spurred numerous commentaries over the centuries. As previously mentioned, the author supplemented it with an auto-commentary, and his students and colleagues contributed notes, queries, and commentaries. In the same century of its release, additional works emerged, with the notable Tashnīf al-masāmi^c bi-Jam^c al-jawāmi^{c105} by Badr al-Dīn al-Zarkashī (d. 794/1392). Al-Zarkashī's choice to comment on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c is particularly significant, given his prolific contributions to various Islamic disciplines, including the multi-faceted uṣūlī encyclopaedia, al-Baḥr al-muḥīt. Al-Zarkashī justifies his choice by highlighting the text's unique quotes, insightful issues, precise definitions, and ¹⁰⁴ Ḥasan ibn Abd al-Ḥamīd Bukhārī, ʿĀmir Bahjat, and Waʿd bint Abdillāh al-Fahd, al-Ḥaqībah al-talīmiyyah li-matni Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ (tashjīrāt wa tadrībāt) (Saudi Arabia: Dār Ṭaybat al-Khaḍirāʾ, 2020).

⁹⁹ Dr Hasan Izral, 'Bediuzzaman Said Nursi and his project for educational reform,' in AL-NUR Academic Studies on Thought and Civilization 3.3 (2011), 153–66.

¹⁰⁰ 'Abd al-Raḥmān ibn 'Abd al-Laṭīf Āl al-Shaykh, Mashāhīr 'ulamā' Najd (Riyad: Dār al-Yamāmah, 1972), 60, 66.

¹⁰¹ Majmū'atun min al-Mu'allifīn, al-Mu'jam al-jāmi' fī tarājum al-'ulamā' wa-țalabat al-'ilm al-mu'āșirīn (al-Maktabah al-Shāmilah), https://al-maktaba.org/book/2080/291#p20 (accessed August 02, 2022).

¹⁰² Check, for example, https://almoqtabas.com/ar/manuscripts?find (accessed August 04, 2022).

¹⁰³ See https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PLHrRbdXRN506r5Cn_7WagsT_OYVaN6E_A (accessed July 28, 2022).

¹⁰⁵ It is one of the best and most extensive commentaries. It has been edited and published many times: [a] edited by 'Abd Allāh Rabī' and Sayyid 'Abd al-'Azīz as PhD thesis, 1995, al-Azhar University, and has been published in four volumes (Cairo: Maktabat al-Qurțubah, 1999); [b] by Abū 'Amr al-Ḥusaynī and has been published in two volumes; [c] by Mūsā ibn 'Alī ibn Mūsā only to the chapter Ijmā' under Aḥmad 'Alī Sayyid Mubārakī, 1985, Maktabat al-Malik Fahd. See also Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 114; 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi', '91.

comprehensive content presented in a concise manner.¹⁰⁶ His disciple, the renowned $had\bar{t}h$ scholar Walī al-Dīn al-ʿIrāqī (d. 826/1422)¹⁰⁷ abridged this commentary in al-Ghayth al-hāmi.¹⁰⁸

Due to the succinct and enigmatic nature of the text, students often relied on commentaries to enhance their understanding. Many commentators acknowledged that it was the demand from their students that motivated them to compile commentaries on Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c.¹⁰⁹ By the ninth century, the number of works on Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c had exceeded thirty, attesting to its growing acceptance.

The most influential commentary was produced in the 9th/15th century by Jalāl al-Dīn al-Maḥallī, attracting more than thirty supercommentaries.¹¹⁰ Aḥmad al-Kūrānī (d. 893/1488), a contemporary of al-Maḥallī, initiated the critique of the author, rejecting many of his explanations of the text.¹¹¹ Al-Kamāl Muḥammad ibn Abī Sharīf (d. 906/1500) who used to teach Sharḥ al-Maḥallī,¹¹² followed the same.¹¹³ However, al-Maḥallī's commentary prevailed as the most widely accepted and became an indispensable aid for studying the base text. Al-Maḥallī's student Badr al-Dīn Muḥammad (d. 893/1488)¹¹⁴ defended through a ḥāshiyah, and later Shihāb al-Dīn Aḥmad ibn Qāsim al-ʿAbbādī (d. 992/1585) dedicated his ḥāshiyah entitled al-Āyāt al-bayyināt to refute these criticisms.¹¹⁵

The ongoing debates and discussions among commentators resulted in an extensive body of literature on $Jam^{c} al$ - $jaw\bar{a}mi^{c}$, with the contribution of scholars in the 10th/16th century alone exceeding thirty. While the frequency of such works diminished in subsequent centuries, they ¹¹⁰ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi', 168–78; 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi',' 95–96.

¹¹¹ Al-Sakhāwī, *al-Daw*², 1:24; al-Shawkānī, *al-Badr al-ṭāli*⁴, 1:32. The work entitled *al-Durar al-lawāmi*⁴ underwent extensive scrutiny as a doctoral thesis at the Islamic University of al-Madīnah by Sa⁴īd Ghālib, ultimately published in 2008.

¹¹² Ḥasan ibn Ḥasan and Muḥammad ibn Yūsuf, who also memorized the matn, for instance, studied Sharḥ al-Maḥallī from him. Ibid., 3:97, 10:31.

¹¹³ Al-Sakhāwī, al-Đaw', 9:66; al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāli', 2:124.

¹¹⁴ Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad, Badr al-Dīn, was born in 830/1427, and earned the appellation Ibn Khaṭīb al-Fakhriyyah. In response to Ibn Abī Sharīf's criticism, he meticulously compiled his ḥāshiyah. Another notable pupil of al-Maḥallī, Muḥammad ibn ʿAbdillāh, studied this sharḥ. See al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw', 9:24-25, 8:98 respectively.

¹¹⁵ The author's primary focus is to staunchly defend both al-Subkī and al-Maḥallī, countering all criticisms levelled against them, especially by figures like al-Kūrānī and al-Kamāl. This defensive stance is evident in the comprehensive title of the work, al-Āyāt al-bayyināt ʿalā indifāʿi aw-fasādi mā waqaftu ʿalayhi mimmā ūrida ʿalā Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ wa sharḥihi li-al-Muḥaqqiq min al-iʿtirāḍāt (The clear sings on invalidation or defects in everything I have observed from the objections against Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ and its commentary by al-Maḥallī). This extensive work, widely cited by later commentators, has been published multiple times, including a four-volume edition by Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah in 1996.

¹⁰⁶ Badr al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Bahādur al-Zarkashī, Tashnīf al-masāmiʿ bi Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, ed. by Abū ʿAmr al-Ḥusayn (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿllmiyyah, 2000), 1:15.

¹⁰⁷ Aḥmad ibn 'Abd al-Raḥīm, Abū Zarʿah Walī al-Dīn al-'Irāqī, born in 792 in Cairo, relocated to Damascus, where he met with eminent scholars. He was appointed as qādī, khaṭīb and mudarris. Abū Bakr ibn Aḥmad ibn Qādī Shuhbah, Ṭabaqāt al-Shāfī 'iyyah (Beirut: 'Ālam al-Kutub, 1987), 4:80-82; al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-ṭāli', 1:51–53.

¹⁰⁸ It is edited and published in three volumes, as cited before.

¹⁰⁹ Al-Maḥallī, al-Badr al-ṭāli^c, 66.

manifested in various forms, including commentaries (sharḥ), marginalia like ḥāshiyah al-ʿAṭṭār, and taqrīrāt (marginal notes) like the work of ʿAbd al-Raḥmān al-Shirbīnī (d. 1334/1926).¹¹⁶ Some, like Nūr al-Dīn al-Ashmūnī's (d. 918/1512)¹¹⁷ engaged in versification (naẓm) of the text, as evident in his work al-Badr al-lāmiʿ fī naẓm Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ, accompanied by an auto-commentary Hamʿ al-hawāmiʿ.¹¹⁸ A few, like ʿIzz al-Dīn ibn Jamāʿah (d. 819/1416)¹¹⁹ added nukat (notes) to Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ while his student, the distinguished ḥadīth scholar Ibn Ḥajar al-ʿAsqalānī (d. 852/1449) wrote al-Taʿlīq (interlinear notes).¹²⁰

Some scholars undertook multiple commentaries of various types and lengths. For instance, Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī (d. 926/1520) added a supercommentary to Sharḥ al-Maḥallī entitled *al-Nujūm al-lawāmi*⁶121 and abridged Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ to *Lubb al-uṣūl*¹²² with an auto-commentary, Ghāyat al-wuṣūl.¹²³ Ibn Jamāʿah contributed a commentary, al-Ghurar al-lawāmiʿ,¹²⁴

¹¹⁸ The complete title is Ham^c al-hawāmi^c fī sharḥ al-Lam^c al-lawāmi^c, which corresponds to the alternative name of the aforesaid versification. Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 1:285. He used to teach this naẓm to his students like al-Sha^crānī, see Ibid., 3:158.

¹¹⁹ Muḥammad ibn Abī Bakr ibn 'Abd al-'Azīz, 'Izz al-Dīn al-Kanānī al-Maqdisī is known as Ibn Jamā'ah. Born in 746 or 749/1348, he exhibited a remarkable aptitude for diverse fields of knowledge encompassing sports and skills. Biographers note that he diligently recorded his thoughts on every book he encountered. He studied from luminaries such as al-Subkī, Ibn Khaldūn, and Ibn Ḥajar among others. His significant role as a transmitter of Jam' al-jawāmi' is evident, having been both a student of the author and a teacher to many of the subsequent commentators. Ibn Qādī Shuhbah, Ṭabaqāt, 4:49–50; al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-ṭāli', 2:62-63; 'Umar Ridā Kaḥhālah, Mu'jam al-mu'allifīn: tarājum muṣannifī al-kutub al-'Arabiyyah (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Turāth al-'Arabī, 1957), 9:111.

¹²⁰ Shams al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Sakhāwī, al-Jawāhir wa al-durar fī tarjumat Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Ḥajar, ed. by Ibrāhīm 'Abd al-Majīd (Beirut: Dār Ibn Ḥazm, 1999), 2:693; Jalāl al-Dīn 'Abd al-Rḥmān al-Suyūṭī, Naẓm al-ʿiqyān fī aʿyān al-aʿyān (Beirut: al-Maktabah al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1927), 49; Muḥammad 'Abd al-Raʾūf al-Munāwī, al-Yawāqīt wa al-durar fī sharh Nukhbat al-fikr, ed. by Al-Murtaḍā Aḥmad (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 1999), 1:141.

¹²¹ Al-Nujūm al-lawāmi fī ibrāzī daqā iq Sharḥ Jam al-jawāmi li al-Maḥallī, is edited jointly by 'Abd al-Ḥafīẓ al-Jazārī and Murtaḍā 'Alī and published in four volumes by Maktabah al-Rushd, Riyad in 2007.

¹²² It stands as the most refined abridgement of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, where the author made subtle adjustments to certain of al-Subkī and omitted few discussions. Notably, in some regions, it has been designated as a uṣūlī textbook, as previously mentioned.

¹²³ In this work the commentator depends on his teacher al-Maḥallī's work. Mostly his sentences are the same as Sharḥ al-Maḥallī. Abū Yaḥyā Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī, Ghāyat al-wuṣūl sharḥ Lubb al-uṣūl (Beirut: Dār al-Fikr, 2002).

¹²⁴ Ibn Qādī Shuhbah, Ṭabaqāt, 4:50; al-Sakhāwī, al-Daw', 7:171; al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-ţāli', 2:62; Myhrman, 27; Muṣṭafā ibn ʿAbd Allāh Hājī Khalīfah, Kashf al-ẓunūn ʿan asāmī al-kutub wa al-funūn (n.p., Dār al-Fikr, 1982), 1:596; Hasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 115. However, ʿAqīlah (p. 92) put the title as al-Najm allāmiʿ Sharḥ Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ.

¹¹⁶ It encompasses clarifications of the matn, the commentary by al-Maḥallī and the Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī. Published numerous times, it is often accompanied by Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī. See 'Abd al-Raḥmān al-Shirbīnī, Taqrīrāt al-Shirbīnī, printed in the margin of afore cited Ḥāshiyat al-ʿAṭṭār.

¹¹⁷ 'Alī ibn Muḥammad ibn 'Īsā ibn Yūsuf ibn Muḥammad al-Ashmūnī, Nūr al-Dīn Abū al-Ḥasan, student of both al-Maḥallī and al-Bulqīnī, was born in 838/1434. The exact date of his death varies, with sources suggesting anywhere from 918 to 930. Al-Shawkānī, al-Badr al-țāli', 1:335.

besides his nukat. Al-Suyūṭī versified the text in al-Kawkab al-sāți^c with an auto-commentary¹²⁵ and provided nukat on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, justifying that: "I did not find anyone versified it before despite their versification of the Mukhtaṣar of Ibn al-Ḥājib and Minhāj of al-Bayḍāwī. This work deserves more, as no equivalent work has been compiled before or after it."¹²⁶

Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, surpassing its Shāfi^cī legacy, has elicited commentaries from scholars of other madhhabs. ^cUmar al-Ghaznawī (d. 773/1371),¹²⁷ a Ḥanafī contemporary of al-Subkī, penned al-Lawāmi^c fī shar^h Jam^c al-jawāmi^c,¹²⁸ standing as one of its earliest commentaries. Remarkably, there are at least three additional Ḥanafī commentaries,¹²⁹ a notable phenomenon in the trajectory of uṣūl al-fiqh literature, broadly classified into two distinctive styles: țarīqat al-mutakallimīn (method of the scholastics) represented by Shāfi^cīs and țarīqat al-fuqahā^c (method of jurists), represented by Ḥanafīs.

Given that Mālikites generally adhered to the style of țarīqat al-mutakallimīn, which is thus known as method of the majority (țarīqat al-jumhūr), the inter-madhhab writings were common among them. More than twenty commentaries and supercommentaries by Mālikī scholars can be identified.¹³⁰ Notable among these is al-Diyā, al-lāmi, by Abū al-ʿAbbās Aḥmad Ḥulūlū (d. 898/1493),¹³¹ who also has another extensive commentary, al-Badar al-țālī,¹³² One of the widely accepted supercommentaries on Sharḥ al-Maḥallī, found in many editions and commonly used by students, is Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī,¹³³ by Mālikī scholar, ʿAbd al-Raḥmān ibn Jād Allāh al-Bannānī (d. 1198/1783). Even scholars from Ḥanbalī madhhab, known for fewer uṣūlī works, made attempts to produce commentaries, such as al-Badr al-lāmi sharḥ Jamʿ al-jawāmi by Aḥmad Manṣūr Āl Sabālik, an influential salafī scholar.¹³⁴

In addition to these commentaries, several works have addressed specific sections or topics discussed in Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. For instance, al-Badr al-sāțī^c 'alā muqaddimat Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.

¹²⁷ He is 'Umar ibn Isḥāq ibn Aḥmad, Abū al-Ḥafṣ al-Qāḍī Sirāj al-Dīn al-Ghaznawī. Born in India in 704/1304, he ventured to Cairo in 740, where he was appointed as the qādī for the Ḥanafites. He cultivated strong connections with Mamlūk rulers. Ibn Ḥajar, al-Durar al-Kāminah, 3:91–92.

¹²⁸ Ismā'īl Bāshā Bābānī, Hadiyyat al-'ārifīn: asmā' al-mu'allifīn wa āthār al-muṣannifīn (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Thurāth al-'Arabī, 1951), 1:790; al-Marāghī, al-Fatḥ al-mubīn, 2:188; Sha'bān, Uṣūl al-fiqh, 367.

¹²⁹ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi', 167–78.

130 Ibid.

¹³¹ Ahmad ibn 'Abd al-Rahmān Ḥulūlū, al-Diyā' al-lāmi' sharh Jam' al-jawāmi' fī uşūl al-fiqh, ed. 'Abd al-Karīm ibn 'Alī al-Namlah (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 1999).

¹³² Al-Marāghī, al-Fatḥ al-Mubīn, 3:44; Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 117; Namlah in Ḥulūlū, al-Diyā ^{*} al-lāmi^{*}, 1:29.

¹³³ It was first published in 1285/1868, and then various editions have been published many times in different countries, as it is the most popular glosses that used to be found with the commentary of al-Maḥallī. ʿAbd al-Raḥmān ibn Jād Allāh al-Bannānī, Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī ʿalā Sharḥ al-Maḥallī (Bayrūt: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1998).

¹³⁴ See his official website: http://drahmedsbalek.com/newver/?omary (accessed on 03-08-2022).

¹²⁵ Multiple editions of the work are available, for example, Jalāl al-Dīn 'Abd al-Raḥmān al-Suyūṭī, Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-sāți' fī naẓm Jam' al-jawāmi', ed. by Muḥammad Ibrāḥīm al-Ḥafnāwī (Cairo: Dar al-Salām, 2005).

¹²⁶ Al-Suyūtī, Sharḥ al-Kawkab, 1:34–35.

jawāmi,¹³⁵ by Muḥammad ibn Bakhīt ibn Ḥusayn al-Maṭīʿī (d. 1354/1935),¹³⁶ a Ḥanafī scholar, provides an explanation of its introduction. Numerous others have followed suit.¹³⁷ Al-Subkī's definition of uṣūl al-fiqh and uṣūl was distinct, leading to treatises both opposing and supporting it. An example is *al-Kalim al-jawāmiʿ fī bayāni masʾalat al-uṣūlī bi Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ*¹³⁸ by Ismāʿīl ibn Ghunaym al-Jawharī (d. 1165/1751), followed by three similar works.¹³⁹ Raḍī al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Ghazzī¹⁴⁰ elaborated on its uṣūl al-dīn part in Sharḥ ʿaqīdat Jamʾ al-jawāmiʿ.¹⁴¹

The trend of writing commentary or marginalia on $Jam^{c} al-jaw\bar{a}mi^{c}$ persists, albeit the $h\bar{a}shiyah$ literature is largely given way to $ta^{c}l\bar{l}q$ (comment) or $tahq\bar{l}q$ (editing) in the contemporary period. Furthermore, $Jam^{c}al-jaw\bar{a}mi^{c}$ and a significant number of its commentaries have been subjects of study in university dissertation work, and many of them have been published across the globe.

Conversely, criticism of the work persists, illustrated by Muṣṭafā Ibrāhīm al-Zalmī's article, Akhṭā' uṣūliyyah li-Ibn al-Subkī,¹⁴² elucidating mistakes committed by al-Subkī, which was subsequently refuted by Ḥasan Khālid Muṣṭafā Maḥmūd al-Muftī¹⁴³ through his work *Naqd uslūb al-Zalmī wa naqḍ i'tirāḍātihi.*¹⁴⁴ The reciprocal engagement with criticisms against al-Subkī and his Jam' al-jawāmi', even in contemporary discussions, is indicative of the enduring reputation and significance that the author and his work hold among scholars.

As a Source for Subsequent Scholarship

Jam^c al-jawāmi^c has served as an invaluable resource for subsequent scholarship in uṣūl al-fiqh, as al-Subkī consolidates his views on various issues and collates opinions of early scholars

¹³⁸ Hasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 120. A manuscript can be downloaded from http://al-mostafa.info/data/arabic/depot3/gap.php?file=m001036.pdf (accessed on 05 August 2022).

¹⁴⁰ Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad, Raḍī al-Dīn Abū al-Faḍl al-Ghazzī was born in 862/1457 at Damascus. He has another work on the theological part of the Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ. Najm al-Dīn al-Ghazzī, the author of al-Kawākib, is his grandson. Al-Ghazzī, al-Kawākib, 2:3–5.

¹⁴¹ It is a commentary of the uṣūl al-dīn part of Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ. Ibid., 2:5; Ibn al-ʿImād, Shadharāt, 8:254; Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 120.

¹⁴² Dr Muṣṭafā Ibrāhīm al-Zalmī scrutinized the work in an article titled akhṭāʿ uṣūliyyah li-Ibn al-Subkī fī kitābihi Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ (the uṣūlī mistakes of al-Subkī in his Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ) initially published in al-Tajdīd (Issue. 2, 5), a journal by Muntadā al-Fikr al-Islāmī, Kurdistan. This critical analysis, later compiled into a treatise and distributed locally ((Erbil, 2010), presents fourteen objections to al-Subkī, echoing some historical contentions.

¹⁴³ The author is the head of the Department of Sharīʿah, Kulliyyah of Islamic Studies, Salahuddin University, Erbil.

¹⁴⁴ The title means "criticising the methodology of al-Zalmī and invalidating his objections." It serves as a comprehensive al-Zalmī's criticism, providing counter perspective on all objections of al-Zalmī.

¹³⁵ Al-Marāghī, al-Fatḥ al-Mubīn, 3:186. This has been published along with other commentaries of the text in one volume by al-Tamaddun Publishers, 1332. Ḥasanāt, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn, 121; 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi', '95; Namlah, in Ḥulūlū, al-Diyā' al-lāmi', 1:32.

¹³⁶ Born in 1271/1855, he pursued his studies at al-Azhar and later assumed the role of a lecturer. He was a student of Jamāl al-Dīn al-Afghānī and ascended to the positions of mufti and qādī in Egypt. He used to deliver lectures on Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ. Al-Marāghī, al-Fatḥ al-mubīn, 3:181–87.

¹³⁷ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi', 167–78.

¹³⁹ Jabir Ali Hudawi, al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi', 178–79.

across related disciplines. Although he does not cite specific works in Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, the author mentions in the preface that it draws from about one hundred works, encapsulating the essence of his two commentaries. At the beginning of Raf^c al-hājib, al-Subkī lists around sixty sources, noting that naming them all would be time-consuming and paper-wasting endeavour.¹⁴⁵ This list includes works solely within uṣūl and related fields; excluding sources from other disciplines and previous commentaries on Mukhtaṣar and Minhāj. Thus, the actual count of sources would surpass one hundred. Uṣūlī discussions, as a science of principles, naturally intersect with a wide range of disciplines, such as sciences of Qur'ān and ḥadīth, fiqh, theology, language, and dialectology. Al-Subkī highlights this breadth by stating:

In this work, I did not restrict myself to the available works in uṣūl al-fiqh; rather, I have incorporated many works of theologians, traditionists, dialecticians, jurists, and exegetes, as well as countless points gathered through contemplation, deduced by reflection, and articulated with a clear understanding, aspects for which I have no predecessors.¹⁴⁶

The impact of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c on the subsequent development of uṣūl al-fiqh discourse is evident across madhhabs. In Shāfiʿī school, a substantial portion of later uṣūlī compendia, as previously illustrated, comprised commentary works on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. Another notable contribution comes from al-Zarkashī, whose al-Baḥr al-muḥīt serves as an encyclopaedic work in uṣūl al-fiqh. It is noteworthy that al-Zarkashī has compiled a commentary on Jam^c al-jawāmi^c, suggesting potential influence, even though he makes no mention of al-Subkī or his Jam^c al-jawāmi^c. The structure and content of al-Zarkashī's another work, Salāsil al-dhahab, exhibit similarities with Jam^c al-jawāmi^c.¹⁴⁷ An influential later matn work is Lubb al-uṣūl, an abridgement of Jam^c al-jawāmi^c by Zakariyyah al-Anṣārī.

Concerning its influence on the Ḥanafī literature, al-Subkī is frequently mentioned in al-Taqrīr wa al-taḥrīr, a commentary by Ibn Amīr al-Ḥāj (d. 879/1474) on al-Taḥrīr of Ibn al-Humām (d. 861/1457), both widely accepted works in the school. Given its incorporation of both Shāfiʿī and Ḥanafī styles in uṣūl al-fiqh, this work relies extensively on Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ and regards al-Subkī's opinions as representing the Shāfiʿī school.¹⁴⁸

Abū al-Ḥasan al-Mardāwī (d. 885/1480), in his auto-commentary al-Taḥbīr sharḥ al-Taḥrīr, a remarkable Ḥanbalī text, not only cites Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ and its commentaries but also engage in comparison of various scholars' opinions and word choices with those of al-Subkī. While delineating the conditions for the ḥukm of the original case (aṣal) in qiyās, he emphasizes that it should be a sharʿī issue, justifying his stance by aligning with the opinion of al-Subkī, concurred upon by all commentators.¹⁴⁹ This holds significance, as unanimity among commentators on an opinion of mātin lends legitimacy, signifying originality of subsequent sharḥ works, a dimension that is sometimes underestimated. Another prominent Ḥanbalī scholar, Ibn Najjār (d. 972/1564)

- ¹⁴⁶ Al-Subkī, Man' al-mawāni', 369–70.
- ¹⁴⁷ 'Aqīlah, 'Jam' al-jawāmi',' 130.

¹⁴⁸ See, for example, the discussion on denying an issue of consensus in Abū Abdillāh Shams al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Amīr al-Ḥāj, Kitāb al-taqrīr wa al-taḥrīr ʿalā Taḥrīr al-Kamāl ibn al-Humām (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1403/1983), 3:114.

¹⁴⁹ 'Alā' al-Dīn Abū al-Ḥasan 'Alī al-Mardāwī, al-Taḥbīr sharḥ al-Taḥrīr, ed. 'Abd al-Raḥmān (Riyad: Maktabah al-Rushd, 2000), 7:144.

¹⁴⁵ Al-Subkī, Raf^{} al-ḥājib*, 1:238.

also extensively quotes al-Subkī and several commentaries of Jam' al-jawāmi' in his Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-munīr.¹⁵⁰

The overwhelming reception of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c among Malikīes as a text of uṣūl al-fiqh has a far-reaching impact on the later uṣūlī works within Mālikī school. Al-Shanqīṭī, a Mālikī scholar from Mauritania, refers in his Irshād al-muqallidīn to al-Subkī's views on the fallibility and infallibility of ijtihād and the divisibility of *ijtihād*ic qualification from Sharḥ al-Maḥallī.¹⁵¹ He also cites al-Diyā' al-lāmi', a Mālikī commentary on Jam' al-jawāmi' by Ḥulūlū,¹⁵² and Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-sāti', the versification by al-Suyūțī.¹⁵³

Al-Sanʿānī (d. 1182/1769), a famous jurist and prolific writer, in his Irshād al-nuqqād,¹⁵⁴ and *Ijābat al-sāʾil*¹⁵⁵ regularly refers to the opinions of al-Subkī in Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ. Al-Shawkānī also draws from Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ in his various works, like Irshād al-fuḥūl.¹⁵⁶ In modern scholarship, scholars like Muḥammad Amīn Suwayd al-Dimashqī (d. 1355/1936)¹⁵⁷ and Muḥammad ibn Ḥasan al-Ḥajwī (d. 1376/1956)¹⁵⁸ cite uṣūlī issues from Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ in their respective works. Nādiyah, in her work on ljtihād, quotes al-Subkī extensively on numerous issues, including the definition of the mujtahid, the order of mujtahids, invalidating an ijtihad, and periods devoid of mujtahid.¹⁵⁹ She also refers to commentaries by al-Maḥallī, al-Bannānī, and Ibn Qāsim.

However, references to Jam^c al-jawāmi^c are relatively limited in non-Arabic works, perhaps due to the challenges in comprehending the text. Yet, some scholars have recorded al-Subkī's uṣūlī opinions. For example, in the discussion on the total extinction of mujtahids at any given period, Hashim Kamali includes al-Subkī among the majority of scholars affirming such a possibility.¹⁶⁰ Jam^c al-jawāmi^c and some of its commentaries are referenced by Imran Nyazee in his work, Islamic Jurisprudence.¹⁶¹ Aḥmad Ḥasan stands out for extensively quoting al-Subkī in ¹⁵¹ Sayyidī Bāb ibn al-Shaykh Sayyib Muḥammad al-Shanqīṭī, Irshād al-muqallidīn 'inda ikhtilāf al-mujtahidīn, ed. by Al-Ṭayyib ibn 'Umar (Beirut: Dār Ibn Ḥazm, 1997), 68-69, 185.

¹⁵² See Ibid., 159, 195, 207 and 226.

¹⁵³ For example, see Ibid., 250–52.

¹⁵⁴ Al-Amīr al-Ṣanʿānī, Muḥammad ibn Ismāʿīl, Irshād al-nuqqād ilā taysīr al-ijtiḥād, ed. Salāḥuddīn Maqbūl Aḥmad (Kuwait: al-Dar al-Salafiyya, 1405), 27.

¹⁵⁵ Al-Amīr al-Ṣanʿānī, Muḥammad ibn Ismāʿīl, Kitāb uṣūl al-fiqh al-musammā Ijābat al-sāʿil sharḥ Bughyat al-āmil (Mu'assasat al-Risālah, 1986), 240.

¹⁵⁶ Shawkānī, Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī, Irshād al-fuḥūl ilā taḥqīq al-ḥaqq min ʿilm al-uṣūl, ed. Al-Shaykh Aḥmad ʿAzw (Damascus: Dār al-Kutub, 1999), 1:273.

¹⁵⁷ Muḥammad Amīn Suwayd al-Dimashqī, Taṣḥīl al-ḥuṣūl ʿalā qawāʿid al-uṣūl, ed. Muṣtafā Saʿīd al-Khinn (Damascus: Dār al-Qalam, 1991), 67.

¹⁵⁸ See his work, al-Fikr al-sāmī fī tārīkh al-fiqh al-Islām (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmīyah, 1995).

¹⁵⁹ See Nādiyah Sharīf al-ʿUmarī, al-Ijtihād fī al-Islām (Beirut: Mu'assasat al-Risālah, 2001), 17, 188, 214, 224 respectively.

¹⁶⁰ Mohammad Hashim Kamali, Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence, (2nd ed., Malaysia: Ilmiyah Publishers, 2000), 386.

¹⁶¹ Imran Ahsan Khan Nyazee, Islamic jurisprudence (Malaysia: Other books, 2003), 364.

¹⁵⁰ See, for example, the discussion on abrogation of the Qur'ān by Sunnah in Taqī al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad al-Futūḥī Ibn al-Najjār, Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-munīr, ed. by Muḥammad al-Zuḥylī (Maktabah al-ʿUbaykān, 1418/1997), 3:578.

various works. In his The Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence, al-Subkī is cited on issues such as [1] the definition of karāhah (detestable) and khilāf al-awlā (suboptimal), [2] 'azīmah (stringent ruling) and rukhsah (dispensation), and [3] the definitions of $ad\bar{a}$ ' (timely fulfilment) and qada' (compensatory fulfilment).¹⁶² The recently published The Compendium of Seminary Texts, a translation of various instrumental sciences, includes an uṣūl al-fiqh treatise based on Jam' al-Jawāmi' and its commentaries.¹⁶³

These samples, while not exhaustive, strongly indicate that Jam' al-jawāmi' has been esteemed as a reliable source for later scholars, including contemporary writers in various languages.

Conclusion

This study demonstrates that al-Subkī's Jamʿal-jawāmiʿ represents a high point in uṣūl al-fiqh scholarship, synthesizing and building upon early literature. Beyond its historical significance, it continued to exert a profound impact, valued as a precise and comprehensive summary of the discipline. Its concise yet nuanced style, has established Jamʿal-jawāmiʿ as a key text, rigorously studied, and frequently memorized in Islamic institutions worldwide for centuries. The records underscore its study with the commentaries like Sharḥ al-Maḥallī, along with supercommentaries such as Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī, depicting the evolving patterns within traditional Islamic education. Despite its Shāfiʿī origin, the text's embrace by scholars from various schools, notably Mālikīes and Ḥanafīs, indicates a cross-madhhab engagement within the domain of uṣūl al-fīqh. The selection of eminent authors like al-Zarkashī, Ibn Jamāʿah, al-ʿIrāqī, al-Suyūṭī, al-ʿAsqalānī, and Zakariyyah al-Anṣārī for commentaries attests to its depth and complexity, challenging preconceptions about the nature of commentaries.

Contrary to the perception of commentaries as mere regurgitations, the ongoing debates among commentators have given rise to a diverse literary family, with over a hundred works exploring various facets of Jam^c*al-jawāmi*^c. This makes it the most commented-upon work in uṣūl al-fiqh. A comparative study of these commentaries will offer valuable insights into the evolution of uṣūl al-fiqh in the post-classical era, and the contributions of commentary literature. While its central role may have shifted in contemporary uṣūlī studies, classical texts such as Jam^c al-jawāmi^c continue to command reputation among traditional scholars, serving as a cornerstone for the authentic understanding of the discipline.

CRediT Authorship Contribution Statement

Mohamed Jabir Ali al-Hudawi: Conceptualization, Methodology, Writing -original Draft, Supervision, Methodology, Writing - review & editing.

Declaration of Competing Interest

The authors declare that they have no competing financial interests or personal relationships that could influence the work reported in this paper.

Data Availability

Data will be made available on request

¹⁶² Ahmad Hasan, Principles of Islamic jurisprudence, 124, 155, 212–13 respectively.

¹⁶³ Muhammad Emin Er, The Compendium of Seminary Texts, Edited and translated by Marwan M. Tayyan and Justin Poe (Boston: ASIPT, 2024).

References

- 'Abd al-Awwal ibn Ḥammād al-Anṣārī, al-Majmū' fī tarjamat al-'Allāmah al-Muḥaddis al-Shaykh Ḥammād ibn Muaḥmmad al-Anṣārī (Maktaba al-Shāmilah).
- 'Abd al-Raḥmān ibn 'Abd al-Laṭīf Āl al-Shaykh, Mashāhīr 'ulamā' Najd, Riyad: Dār al-Yamāmah, 1972.Abū Bakr ibn Qāḍī Shuhbah, Ṭabaqāt al-Shāfi'iyyah (Beirut: 'Ālam al-Kutub, 1987).
- Abū Zahrah, Muḥammad, Uṣūl al-Fiqh (Cairo: Dār al-Fikr al-ʿArabī, 1997).
- Ahmed El Shamsy, 'The Hāshiya in Islamic Law: A Sketch of the Shāfi'ī Literature', Oriens 41. 3/4 (January 2013), 289-315, http://dx.doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413404.
- Al-ʿAlwānī, Ṭāhā Jābir, Uṣūl al-Fiqh al-Islāmī: Manhaj Baḥth wa Maʿrifah, 2nd edn (Riyad: al-Dār al-ʿIlmiyyah li al-Kitāb al-Islāmī, 1995).
- Al-ʿAṭṭār, al-ʿAllāmah Ḥasan, Ḥāshiyat al-ʿAṭṭār ʿalā Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1999).
- Al-Bannānī, ʿAbd al-Raḥmān ibn Jād Allāh, Ḥāshiyat al-Bannānī ʿalā Sharḥ al-Maḥallī (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1998).
- Al-Ghazzī, Najm al-Dīn Muḥammad, al-Kawākib al-Sā'irah bi A'yān al-Mi'ah al-'Āshirah, ed. by Khalīl al-Manṣūr (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1997).
- Al-Ḥafnāwī, Muḥammad Ibrāhīm, al-Fatḥ al-Mubīn fī Ḥall Rumūz wa Muṣṭalaḥāt al-Fuqahā' wa'l-Uṣūliyyīn (Egypt: Dār al-Salām, 2007).
- Al-Hudawi, Mohamed Jabir Ali, 'Terminologies of classical uṣūlī texts: a study of al-Subkī's Jam' aljawāmi'', Islamic Insight Journal of Islamic Studies (IIJIS), 5.1 (2022), 11–38 <https://www.islamicinsight.in/index.php/islamicinsight/article/view/19>
- Al-Hudawi, Mohamed Jabir Ali, and Hikmatullah Babu Sahib, 'Methodology of classical uṣūlī texts: a critical appraisal of Tāj al-Subkī's Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ', Indonesian Journal of Islamic Literature and Muslim Society, 8.2 (2023), 24–49 <https://doi.org/10.22515/islimus.v8i1.4440>
- Al-Khalīl al-Naḥwī, Bilād Shanqīt al-Manārah wa'l-Rabāț (Tunisia: al-Munaẓẓamah al-'Arabiyyah li al-Tarbiyah wa'l-Thaqāfah wa'l-'Ulūm, 1987).
- Al-Khudrī Bayk, Muhammad, Uşūl al-Fiqh (Egypt: Al-Maktabah al-Tijāriyyah al-Kubrā, 1969).
- Al-Maḥallī, Jalāl al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad, Al-Badr al-Ṭāliʿ fī Ḥall Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ, 1st edition, ed. by Abū al-Fidāʾ Murtaḍā ʿAlī ibn Muḥammad (Beirut: Muʾassasat al-Risālah Nāshirūn, 2005).
- Al-Marāghī, 'Abd Allāh Muṣṭafā, Al-Fatḥ al-Mubīn fī Ṭabaqāt al-Uṣūliyyīn, 2nd edn (Beirut: Muḥammad Amīn Damj, 1974).
- Al-Mardāwī, 'Alā' al-Dīn Abū al-Ḥasan 'Alī, al-Taḥbīr sharḥ al-Taḥrīr, ed. by 'Abd al-Raḥmān (Riyad: Maktabah al-Rushd, 2000).
- Al-Murādī, Muḥammad Ḥalīl, Silk al-Durar fī Aʿyān al-Qarn al-Thānī ʿAshar, ed. by Akram Ḥasan al-ʿUlabī (Beirut: Dār al-Ṣādir, 2002).
- Al-Qanūjī, Siddīq ibn Hasan, Abjad al-'Ulūm (Lahore: Al-Maktabah al-Quddūsiyyah, 1983).
- Al-Ṣafadī, Khalīl ibn Aybak, Al-Wāfī bi al-Wafayāt (Weisbaden: Dār al-Nashr Franz, 1949).
- Al-Sakhāwī, Muḥammad ibn ʿAbd al-Raḥmān, Al-Daw' al-Lāmiʿ li Ahl al-Qarn al-Tāsiʿ (Beirut: Dār al-Jīl, 1992).

- Al-Sakhāwī, Shams al-Dīn Muḥammad, al-Jawāhir wa'l-durar fī tarjumat Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Ḥajar, ed. by Ibrāhīm 'Abd al-Majīd (Beirut: Dār Ibn Ḥazm, 1999).
- Al-Saynāwī, Ḥasan ibn al-Ḥāj ʿUmar, Al-Aṣl al-Jāmiʿ li Īḍāḥ al-Durar al-Manẓūmah fī Salk Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ (Tunisia: Maṭbaʿat al-Nahḍah, 1928).
- Al-Shanqīţī, Sayyidī Bāb ibn al-Shaykh Sayyib Muḥammad, Irshād al-Muqallidīn ʻinda Ikhtilāf al-Mujtahidīn, ed. by al-Ṭayyib ibn ʿUmar (Beirut: Dār Ibn Ḥazm, 1997).
- Al-Sharbīnī, 'Abd al-Raḥmān, Taqrīrāt al-Sharbīnī. Printed in the margin of Al-'Allāmah Ḥasan al-'Aṭṭār, Ḥāshiyat al-'Aṭṭār 'alā Jam' al-Jawāmi' (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1999).
- Al-Shāțibī, Ibrāhīm ibn Mūsā, al-Muwāfaqāt fī Uṣūl al-Sharīʿah, ed. by Abū ʿUbaydah Mashhūr ibn Ḥasan al-Sulaymān (Saudi Arabia: Dār Ibn ʿAffān, 1997).
- Al-Shāțibī, Ibrāhīm ibn Mūsā, al-Muwāfaqāt fī Uṣūl al-Sharīʿah, ed. by ʿAbd Allāh Darrāz (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 2005).
- Al-Shawkānī, Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī, al-Badr al-Ṭāliʿ bi Maḥāsin man baʿda al-Qarn al-Sābiʿ, ed. by Khalīl al-Manṣūr (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1998).
- Al-Shawkānī, Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī, Irshād al-fuḥūl ilā taḥqīq al-ḥaqq min ʿilm al-uṣūl, ed. by Al-Shaykh Aḥmad ʿAzw (Damascus: Dār al-Kutub, 1999).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Jam' al-Jawāmi' fī Uṣūl al-Fiqh, ed. by 'Abd al-Mun'im Khalīl Ibrāhīm (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 2003).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Jam' al-Jawāmi'. In Majmū' Muhimmāt al-Mutūn (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1994).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Man' al-Mawāni' 'an Jam' al-Jawāmi', ed. by Sa'īd ibn 'Alī Muḥammad al-Ḥumayrī (Beirut: Dār al-Bashā'ir, 1999).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Mu'īd al-Ni'am wa Mubīd al-Niqam (The Restoration of Favours and the Restrainer of Chastisements), ed. by D. W. Myhrman (London: Luzac &Co, 1978).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Raf' al-Ḥājib 'an Mukhtaṣar Ibn al-Ḥājib, ed. by 'Alī Muḥammad Mu'awwaḍ and 'Ādil Aḥmad 'Abd al-Mawjūd (Beirut: 'Ālam al-Kutub, 1999).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Ṭabaqāt al-Shāfi'iyyah al-Kubrā, ed. by Maḥmūd Muḥammad al-Ṭanāḥī and Abd al-Fattāḥ (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Kutub al-'Arabiyyah, 1992).
- Al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn 'Abd al-Wahhāb, Ṭabaqāt al-Shāfi'iyyah al-Kubrā, ed. by Muṣṭafa 'Abd al-Qādir Aḥmad 'Aṭā (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1999).
- Al-Subkī, Taqī al-Dīn and al-Subkī, Tāj al-Dīn, al-Ibhāj fī Sharḥ al-Minhāj, ed. by Maḥmūd Amīn al-Sayyid (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 2004).
- Al-Suyūțī, Jalāl al-Dīn 'Abd al-Raḥmān Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-Sāți' fī Naẓm Jam' al-Jawāmi', ed. by Maḥmūd 'Abd al-Raḥmān and Muntaṣir Muḥammad (Cairo: Dār al-Kitāb al-Islāmī, 2006).
- Al-Suyūțī, Jalāl al-Dīn 'Abd al-Raḥmān, Naẓm al-'Iqyān fī A'yān al-A'yān (Beirut: Al-Maktabah al-'Ilmiyyah, 1927).
- Al-Suyūțī, Jalāl al-Dīn 'Abd al-Raḥmān, Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-Sāți' fī Naẓm Jam' al-Jawāmi', ed. by Muḥammad Ibrāḥīm al-Ḥafnāwī (Cairo: Dār al-Salām, 2005).
- Al-Zankī, Ṣāliḥ, Maʿālim al-Turāthī al-Uṣūlī: Kitāb Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ liʾl-Imām Ibn al-Subkī Namūdhajan (Kuala Lumpur: Dār al-Tajdīd, 2007).
- Al-Zarkashī, Badr al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Bahādur, Tashnīf al-Masāmi' bi Jam' al-Jawāmi', ed. by Abū 'Amr al-Ḥusyn (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 2000).

- Amīr al-Ṣanʿānī, Muḥammad ibn Ismāʿīl, Irshād al-nuqqād ilā taysīr al-ijtiḥād, ed. by Salaḥuddin Maqbul Aḥma (Kuwait: al-Dar al-Salafiyya, 1405).
- Amīr al-Ṣanʿānī, Muḥammad ibn Ismāʿīl, Kitāb uṣūl al-fiqh al-musammā Ijābat al-sāʾil sharḥ Bughyat al-āmil (Beirut: Muʾassasat al-Risālah, 1986).
- 'Aqīlah, Husayn, Dirāsah wa Tahqīq Jam' al-Jawāmi' fī 'ilm Uşūl al-Fiqh li 'Abd al-Wahhāb ibn 'Alī Tāj al-Dīn ibn al-Subkī (Doctoral thesis, Algiers: University of Algiers, 2006) <http://ia600709.us.archive.org/20/items/Rasa2ilJami3iaMJJ/HOCINEAKILA.PDF>
- Asad Q. Ahmed, 'Post-Classical Philosophical Commentaries/Glosses: Innovation in the Margins', Oriens 41. 3/4 (January 2013), 317–48, https://doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413405.
- Bābānī, Ismā'īl Bāshā, Hadiyyata al-'Ārifīn Asmā' al-Mu'allifīn wa Āthār al-Muṣannifīn (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Turāth al-'Arabī, 1951).
- Blājī, 'Abd al-Salām, Taṭawwur 'Ilm Uṣūl al-Fiqh wa Tajadduduhu (Egypt: Dār al-Wafā', 2007).
- Brockelmann, C., Tārīkh al-Adab al-ʿArabī, Trans. By Maḥmūd Fahmī Ḥijāzī (Egypt: Al-Hay'at al-Miṣriyyah al-ʿĀmmah li al-Kitāb, 1995).
- Er, Muhammad Emin, The Compendium of Seminary Texts, Edited and translated by Marwan M. Tayyan and Justin Poe (Boston: ASIPT, 2024).
- Falūsī, Masʿūd ibn Mūsā, Madrasat al-Mutakallimīn wa Manhajuhā fī Dirāsat Uṣūl al-Fiqh (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 2004).
- Hājī Khalīfah, Muṣṭafā ibn ʿAbd Allāh, Kashf al-Ṣunūn ʿan Usāmā al-Kutub wa'l-Funūn. (n.p. Dār al-Fikr, 1982).
- Hallaq, W. B., A History of Islamic Legal Theories (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2005).
- Hasan ibn 'Abd al-Hamīd Bukhārī, 'Āmir Bahjat and Wa'd bint Abdillāh al-Fahd, al-Haqībah altalīmiyyah li-matni Jam' al-jawāmi' (tashjīrāt wa tadrībāt) (Saudi Arabia: Dār Ṭaybat al-Khaḍirā', 2020).
- Hasan Izral, 'Bediuzzaman Said Nursi and his project for educational reform', in AL-NUR Academic Studies on Thought and Civilization, 3.3 (2011), 153-166.
- Hasan Khālid Mustafā Mahmūd, Naqd Uslūb al-Zalmī wa Naqdu I'tirādātihi (Irbil, 2010.
- Hasan, Ahmad, The Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence (New Delhi: Adam Publishers, 2005).
- Hasanāt, Aḥmad Ibrāhīm Hasan, al-Imām Tāj al-Dīn al-Subkī wa Manhajuhu fī Uṣūl al-Fiqh (Master thesis, Jordan: al-Jāmiʿah al-Urduniyyah, 2002).
- Haytham Khaznah, Tațawwur al-Fikr al-Ușūlī al-Hanafī (Jordan: Dār al-Rāzī, 2007).
- Hudawi, M. Jabir Ali, Hikmatullah, 'Al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi': a critical appraisal of its structure and contents', The Journal of Rotterdam Islamic and Social Sciences, 5.1 (2014), 59–79 <https://www.jriss.nl/index.php/JRISS/article/view/43>
- Hudawi, Mohamed Jabir Ali, 'al-Subkī's Jam' al-jawāmi': a conceptual critical analysis of its significance, methodology and terminology' (Master Thesis, Malaysia: International Islamic University Malaysia, 2013).
- Hulūlū, Aḥmad ibn ʿAbd al-Raḥmān, al-Điyā' al-Lāmiʿ Sharḥ Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ fī Uṣūl al-Fiqh, ed. by ʿAbd al-Karīm ibn ʿAlī al-Namlah (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 1999).
- Ibn al-'Imād, 'Abd al-Ḥayy ibn Aḥmad, Shadharāt al-Dhahab fī Akhbār man Dhahab (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 1998).
- Ibn al-ʿIrāqī, Walī al-Dīn Aḥmad ibn ʿAbd al-Raḥīm, Al-Ghayth al-Hāmiʿ: Sharḥ Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ, ed. by Muḥammad Tāmir Ḥijāzī (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 2004).

- Ibn al-Najjār, Taqī al-Dīn Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad al-Futūḥī, Sharḥ al-Kawkab al-munīr, ed. by Muḥammad al-Zuḥylī (Maktabah al-ʿUbaykān, 1418/1997).
- Ibn Amīr al-Ḥāj, Abū Abdillāh Shams al-Dīn Muḥammad, Kitāb al-taqrīr wa'l-taḥrīr ʻalā Taḥrīr al-Kamāl ibn al-Humām (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1403/1983).
- Ibn Ḥajar al-ʿAsqalānī, Aḥmad ibn ʿAlī, Al-Durar al-Kāminah fī Aʿyān al-Mi'ah al-Thāminah (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1997).
- Ibn Khaldūn, 'Abd al-Raḥmān Muḥammad, Muqaddimat Ibn Khaldūn, ed. by 'Alī 'Abd al-Wāḥid Wāfī (Cairo: Dār Nahḍat Miṣr, 1979).
- Ibn Qāsim, Aḥmad al-ʿAbbādī, Al-Āyāt al-Bayyināt ʿalā Indifāʿi aw Fasādi mā Waqaftu ʿalayhi mimmā Ūrida ʿalā Jamʿ al-Jawāmiʿ wa Sharḥihi li al-Muḥaqqiq min al-Iʿtirāḍāt (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah,1996).
- Ingalls, Matthew B. 'Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī and the Study of Muslim Commentaries from the Later Islamic Middle Period', Religion Compass, 10. 5 (2016), 118–30, https://doi.org/10.1111/rec3.12198.
- Kaḥḥālah, 'Umar Riḍā, Mu'jam al-Mu'allifīn: Tarājum Muṣannifī al-Kutub al-'Arabiyyah (Beirut: Dār Iḥyā' al-Turāth al-'Arabī, 1957).
- Kamali, Mohammad Hashim, Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence, 2nd edn (Malaysia: Ilmiyah Publishers, 2000).
- Khallāf, Muḥammad 'Abd al-Wahhāb, 'Ilm Uṣūl al-Fiqh (Cairo: Dār al-Ḥadīth, 2003).
- L.W.C. (Eric) Van Lit, 'Commentary and Commentary Tradition,' MIDÉO 32 (2017), 3–26.
- Majmūʿatun min al-Mu'allifīn, al-Muʿjam al-jāmiʿ fī tarājum al-ʿulamā' wa-ṭalabat al-ʿilm almuʿāṣirīn (Al-Maktabah al-Shāmilah).
- Majmūʿatun min al-Mu'allifīn, Majmūʿ muhimmāt al-mutūn (Beirut: Dār al-Kutub al-ʿIlmiyyah, 1994).
- Makdisi, G., The Rise of Colleges (Edinburgh: Edinburgh University Press, 1981).
- Matthew Ingalls, The Anonymity of a Commentator (State University of New York Press, 2021).
- Muḥammad 'Abd al-Ra'ūf al-Munāwī, al-Yawāqīt wa'l-durar fi sharh Nukhbat al-fikr, ed. by Al-Murtaḍā Aḥmad (Riyad: Maktabat al-Rushd, 1999).
- Muḥammad Bay Balālam, al-Ghusn al-dānī fī tarjamat al-Shaykh al-Tanlānī (al-Maktaba al-Shāmilah).
- Muḥammad Bay Balālam, Irshād al-ḥā'ir 'ilā ma'rifat qabīlat Fulān fī janūb al-Jazā'ir (al-Maktaba al-Shāmilah).
- Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad ibn 'Umar Makhlūf, Shajarat al-nūr al-zakiyyah fī ṭabaqāt al-Mālikiyyah (Lebanon: Dār al-Kutub al-'Ilmiyyah, 2003).
- Muḥammad Maḥfūẓ, Tarājum al-mu'allifīn al-Tūnisiyyīn, 2nd edn (Beirut: Dār al-Gharb al-Islām, 1994).
- Nādiyah Sharīf al-'Umarī, Al-Ijtihād fī al-Islām (Beirut: Mu'assasat al-Risālah, 2001).
- Nyazee, I. A, Islamic Jurisprudence (Malaysia: Other books, 2003).
- Saleh, Walid A., 'The Gloss as Intellectual History: The Hāshiyah on al-Kashshāf', Oriens 41. 3/4 (January 2013), 217–59, https://doi.org/10.1163/18778372-13413402.
- Salih, Mohammed T., 'Integrated Education Models: Modernisation, Community Empowerment and Sunni Islamic Social Mobilisation in Kerala, South India' (PhD diss., Pondicherry University, 2022).

Shaʿbān, Muḥammad Ismāʿīl, Uṣūl al-Fiqh: Tārīkhuhu wa Rijāluhu (Riyad: Dār al-Mirrīkh, 1981).

- Shafeeq, H. V., 'A Proposed Framework for the Curriculum of Islamic Education: Implications on the Curricula of Islamic Religious Higher Education Institutions of Kerala, India' (PhD. dissertation, Malaysia: International Islamic University, 2011).
- Spevack, Aaron, The Archetypal Sunnī Scholar: Law, Theology, and Mysticism in the Synthesis of al-Bājūrī (Albany: State University of New York, 2014).
- Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī, Abū Yaḥyā, al-Nujūm al-Lawāmiʿ fī Ibrāzī Daqāʾiq Sharḥ Jamʿ al-jawāmiʿ li al-Maḥallī, ed. by ʿAbd al-Ḥafīẓ al-Jazārī and Murtaḍā ʿAlī (Riyad: Maktabah al-Rushd, 2007).
- Zakariyyā al-Anṣārī, Abū Yaḥyā, Ghāyat al-Wuṣūl Sharḥ Lubb al-Uṣūl (Beirut: Dār al-Fikr, 2002).
- Zubair, K., 'Religious Higher Education in Kerala and Java Province of Indonesia: A Comparative Study' (PhD. Thesis, New Delhi: JNU, 2010).